The AU and Caricom's Mad Dash

When collusion of a disturbing magnitude is uncovered where politicians determined to cause confusion, disruptions and disenfranchisement to Afrikan ascendants, because in minuscule minds 530 years of disconnect from ancestral spaces is not nearly enough, once plans for remaining on top of local disintegrating colonial piles are threatened.

For the past 30 years some Afrikan leadership have engaged with the west seeking reparations for what they perceive is owed to them for the betrayals, kidnappings and sale of our Afrikan ancestors, all of these ugly deeds originating on the Afrikan continent. There are many moving parts to the pleadings, it however became evident this was a money grab with no meaningful plans to include us as ascendants of those Afrikans, chained and sold as chattel. With the enduring fallout of centuries old experiences still very much in existence deep within the survivors' souls, but of no great concern to money stained mindsets. Some of the plotters see us in their dollar sign lenses, not as living breathing people, or their cousins entitled to our birthright, but as lost commodities, for which they, not us, deserve payment in their hands.

While reparations is a central focus for barbarities still en vogue in many ancestral regions, even after all this time, the reparatory hunters should instead focus on the AU that has never managed, controlled or ended that particular nightmare for Afrikans after more than five centuries, and should never try to enjoin events to distract from our Afrikan ancestor's participation or those now guilty. When legally both can be successfully argued separately, because of the many participants then and still involved in the blighted, cursed scourge of Afrikan enslavement.

Enter Barbados, the world's first slave society, with new age politicians well trained in the specifics of overseeing there is no mental or physical freedom for Afrikan peoples, and geared up through UWI, with the night flying twistorians who refused to give the people their real Afrikan and Caribbean stories in schools, but insisted on regurgitating only what they wanted everyone to know; the wicked lie that Afrikan descents are slaves with no other history pre and post 14th century; and did not ever divulge to us that we carry the bloodlines of the first rulers arriving on this planet with the greatest history known in this earthly space. A vile omission and criminal narrative fitted well into beastly plans with each incoming generation instead.

Barbados' Questionable Role in this Indictment

After the 2018 election, the plot afoot could no longer hide. Connections were already made with organizations, churches and descendants of slavers, from the UK, by Barbados and other islands to pay. Some achieved success with deposits made to UWI and one or two other island governments. Knowing the dishonest nature of some, that money should rightfully go directly to ascendants of long ago cruelty. We all knew it was bound to eventually end in a degree of theft. They never disappoint, as people came to that realization recently staring them in the face.

Initially, Barbados' then new PM jumped in and took the lead, commissioned via the university a well detailed Brattle Report with trillions of dollars dilating in every politician's eyes. They then combined Afrika's claim with the Caribbean's. No one knew at the time they had already hired a UK firm, with a member of the House of Lords as their mouthpiece, of course conflict of interest was playing a big part, but those little things never bothered the desperately apathetic. Instructively, everyone missed the small detail of consulting with the descents of Afrika/Caribbean, none asked for permissions and opinions, no one cared, not after seeing all those projected dollar symbols that dazzled, nothing else mattered. Our voices were never heard or needed, denying we existed, and as is the norm, they completely ignore they work for the people and not themselves.

We Know Who Owes Us

My question at the time was, how dare local politicians seek reparations from the UK and Europe only. What about Afrika who owe us as well, what about our birthright. What about the Arab nations who should pay us for their middle man designation over epochs? How dare bajan politicians speak on my behalf without authorization, seeking no consent, acting as though they are entitled and I am invisible and incapable of speaking for myself, when nothing they do impress me enough to admire, let alone welcome them into my ancestral business, a blood boiling, sacrilegious step down and dishonor to my ancestors. Eventually it was revealed Barbados led the charge in sneakily taking money from those who should be paying us, and running elaborate schemes with those who should make sure we have our birthright.

We Know Who Owes Us

The dangerous double-agent bajan politician then proceeded to wantonly cherry pick who should not pay reparations based on cooperation in the duplicity, and unlawfully absolved those who put hundreds of millions of dollars directly into their pockets through unrepayable loans, business arrangements and grants that has turned into another sideshow of land grabs, frightening double interest credit to taxpayers when borrowing at eight (8%) to pay off loans at the previous low four (4%) interest rate, thereby merging payments, and consider themselves economic geniuses and gurus. The arranged immunity from prosecution from any responsibility for their new found lenders, for when things turn illegal was not forgotten. A real glowing circus of no benefit to the people or island in any way, and as usual, promptly sinking into old habits that put the economy in dire financial distress in the first place.

The players on the continent should know since we were never a party to, or involved in suspicious reparations transactions as the then excluded Afrikan ascendants of the most horrific global crimes against humanity known to man, and never made any arrangements with anyone for the aftershocks now felt, unprofitable to everyone but the political apes who believed they were clever. None of the reprisals generated by the obnoxious trafficking in our situation concerns us, all contracts are null and void, especially and including the twofold loans signed with this brainless bajan government who do not carry the ancestral power to interfere in what is not quislings' to understand or participate. I personally see this as sabotage of our ancestors and us, demeaning the enslavement experience and reparations process. Criminal acts by local and foreign governments by any standard, with AU members rubber stamping as tagalongs.

We are instinctively aware that Afrika was bombarded with a barrage of lies from the bajan contingent, so all groups are equally responsible for what transpired, not us by any measure, as the enclaves agreed and sought to eliminate our natural rights. When once again trading on our lives above our heads with treasonous local operatives,

In the meantime, everyone including Spain and Portugal who dragged our helpless ancestlors across the atlantic to appease a gluttonous avarice for murderous enslavement of Afrikans and free labor, along with the longitudinal associations of lenders, crisscrossing continents, still owe us and should be paying equally, but with no money going into the hands of politicians who frantically jumped to the front, tried to seize regional control and dominance for their own, not the people's future, benefit, development or progress. While shrouding everything in a Hollywood fantasy of western celebrity which apparently still appeals to the weak-willed and intensely rapacious, so they cannot see anything beyond weaved mirages. There was/is more than enough time that Afrikan ascendants could individually make legal pleadings themselves.

We Know Who Owes Us

The politicians' diversion was to pretend they are connecting to the continent on our behalf, which up to now, like everything else they touch in society, and true to form, was mishandled and riddled with malicious trickery. The island is right back where it started, unserviceable loans, dependency, begging, a one horse economy, and escalated decadence, with everything coming full circle. All the skating across continents, spewing nuisance and nonsense negative energies into the atmosphere with a forked tongue, strutting around wrapped in deceit, returned in waves and came to nought.

In the meantime, the entire Barbados environment is reduced to social and financial rubble due to dereliction of duties. It is no secret their interests only lay in cementing chokeholds on islands and populations, as lifelong investment in corrupt activities took a turn, came with a very heavy price, and so much to hide. Everything has gone cockup as fitting, blown up in wicked faces, and the reparations spiel has quieted down. We are now not only seeing, but also feeling the aftermath from that gigantic racket that occupied every second of their waking period. Since it has all fallen apart and pink pyjamas Humpty Dumpty took a mighty slip, fell, lost equilibrium and cannot recover. Therefore, there will be no (never going to happen) President Corrupt Socialist/Capitalist bajan Dictator of the Caribbean.

Latin America's Treatment of Black Afrikan Peoples

The unpleasant, vicious art of dehumanizing Black populations and pretending we are obscure and unworthy of participation, did not escape the Latin world. There was a sustained effort over centuries to whiten all darker skin people, dilute bloodlines to what was insanely seen as a more white world acceptable visual. Many Afrikan bloodlines were wiped out as designed. Melanated populations are marginalized up until this timeline still, within Latin christian societies of whiteness.

So to my horror, I questioned what the latin world was doing in our reparations affairs, just as I asked about Guyana and why Indian leadership with their hideous, extreme supremacist views and violent actions toward Afrikans were invited by Barbados to mouth off at UK and Europe, when it is well known they care nothing about their Black Afrikan population just like Latin countries. The answers were shocking.

Latin America's Treatment of Black Afrikan Peoples

It is public knowledge that East Indians in the region originated from SouthEast Asia and brought to the Caribbean as British owned indentured servants a couple hundred years ago, for which they too have a newer claim to UK, but not as chattel slaves, and given their inexplicable copycat deep-seated hatred of Afrikans, had no right sticking their racist mouths in our ancestral petition, no matter who invited them. Especially since it was no morals Barbados who took it upon themselves to recruit stone cold racists to tell off UK and Europe on their, not our behalf. Indentured descents who are free to put in their own demands to the UK for indentured servitude, but stay out of ours, they are not welcome and are sickeningly ineffectual and out of place.

Although not the first to arrive in the Latin region, the Taino descents, of which many Latin Americans can claim heritage, turned up in the area from across the Bering Straits approximately 12,000 years ago, along with those who call themselves Native American Indians. However, the fact remains, our ancient Afrikan ancestors had hundreds of thousands of years prior to that populated, developed and circumnavigated the globe, since no other groups were actively then in existence. Amen Ra.

These Latin bloodlines are primarily made up of West Asians, Mongols, and those coming further from the Far East regions. Ultimately, and due to various invasions and occupations there remains a heavy dominating admixture of Spanish and Portuguese bloodlines in the Latin countries just like Cuba, found in populations with whom Europeans engaged. These are the ruling elite classes in Latin America today.

Afrikan Ascendants in the Caribbean and Interconnecting Bloodlines, Admixtures

There was a previous revelation in an issue of Kush Quarterly that the PM by virtue of descent has a claim as a Venezuelan national, but had the Barbados PM paused to reconsider, she would have arrived at the conclusion that millions of dominant Afrikans on these islands also carry Spanish and Portuguese bloodlines, related to tens of millions of the European aforementioned, and she could have stopped any other grand plans already in motion, think twice, had there been awareness, not carelessness, of the ramifications in pursuing that line of failure.

The unenviable history of Spain and Portugal as the chief instigators and creators of Afrikan transportation and enslavement across the Atlantic before any other European countries is well known, due to their brutality, criminal greed and outright evil thirst to enslave Afrikans, they are notorious. So why is the Barbados PM now accused of setting up descents in Venezuela to take control of our Afrikan birthright? efficiently cutting out Afro Latinos and Afrikan descents in the Caribbean from what is rightfully ours to own, to decide what we want to do moving forward, and not for black politicians to give to whom they prefer, so they can appear relevant in a white painted world. This is not only overstepping, but grounds for an extremely nasty legal fight she cannot win, but will definitely have to answer in her delusions that she has influence and jurisdiction over who should take prominence over our Afrikan lives in this new world order. Amun Ra

The Barbados PM would do well to stay out of our reparations concerns, seeing as she does not have the credibility or capacity to competently argue or speak on anyone's behalf. Since her most recent "Tek de Visa" escapade where people in Barbados and the Caribbean never gave her any endorsement to shout her private emotions or preference at the US, as a foreign operative; but have to weather the resultant retaliation, and effects from the long lasting regional clamp down felt from her self-imploding miscalculation. It is time they all realize there will be no more personal payday for the giddy from our ancestor's multi-generational terror and just shut up already, we have had enough of dressed up clowns.

Another conflict that sees Barbados once again over-stepping and embroiling, imposing itself in something more intellectually equipped people should handle, as warned before and I could not stress enough, they are all the wrong people. As valuable assets/agents of other countries; along with some AU members whose Afrikan ancestors sold ours, and now vaulting ahead with requests like they have entitlement to money from our existence, they too have no right.

Afrikan Ascendants in the Caribbean and Interconnecting Bloodlines, Admixtures

Instead of narrowing down historical events that would give them the leverage to seek damages for ongoing criminal activity against Afrikan people, happening right outside their door step in Afrika, they worked themselves into hysteria over what they thought was trillions of free dollars, aided by Barbados. Hopefully, they did not lose all reasoning skills and inserted themselves in this latest Carigone conjured atrocity against us with Latin America through the University of Ghana. While knowing quite well that remnants and descendants of Portugal and Spain still plague countries on the Afrikan continent today just by their toxic presence.

Admittedly, I saw where some Afrikan Presidents have moved in another direction toward reparatory repair, an intelligent path instead of the hot and sweaty smash and grab as put together by Carigone. Hopefully, none believe that we should in any way feel enthralled by their previous unprofessional, dastardly approach to what should never have reached this level of disgust.

Barbados' Rapid Decline

How many times must bajan politicians be told they do not own Black Afrikan people as slaves or human property and just because they carry diplomatic passports/white immunity after vote begging, lying sprees before election, trumped up, but later abandoned manifestos, and immediately afterward change personas to proclaim themselves malodorous, vindictive overlords; does not give them any right or license to believe they are our masters and not the servants they do not want to take their place as, nor perform duties as paid. What is particularly revolting is that everyone who ran in that political circle of illusion knew exactly what Barbados was setting up and no one tried to stop them, not with brains that is merely programmed jello.

Barbados is now slowly ranked as devolving into another "Little Haiti," because of governmental neglect and mismanagement. A misleadership class too busy modeling the curse of selloutism, preening about how great they are, aggressively trying to claim a nonexistent world leader slot that cannot manifest or reign. Determined to convince everyone regionally and globally that fictitiousness is reality even with a plethora of provable, mounting evidence to the contrary. Although recently seeing foolish speeches meant to mesmerize no longer works; and too wrapped up in themselves to productively or masterfully administer to an island measuring 21L X 14W, with a population of much less than 300,000 people. With all of that, the only success achieved was bringing the people and island to their knees., Amun Ra

The same blueprint of failures from which there is no escape for the population, and neither can the so-called political class run away from the ten-foot hole they spent decades digging for everyone, under the usual pretext, so no one but themselves reap financial rewards.

Whosoever diggeth a pit, shall fall in it, shall bury in it - Bob Marley

The Queen Elizabeth Hospital and Degeneration

The ugliness at the one public hospital donated in 1964 by the UK, just like the national stadium, received in the early 1970s, but neglected, and which China recently replaced. The state of medical seediness at the entity, although recent repairs were carried out, is now widely shared so the public near and far can see the level to which the island has spiraled downward. Nothing works, and at no impressive levels to write home about, only embarrassment and disgrace now rules.

Patients and their families could not take the unbearably deteriorated and overwhelmed condition of what was occurring and brought the grievances to social media, complete with disturbing photos, unknown in the history of the institution. But reports of patients' climbing deaths, uncalled for suffering, too many people including children sleeping on floors, and a wait time to see a doctor of up to four days, something unprecedented in the island's history post so-called independence, tends to put everything into perspective. Only then did the PM deem it necessary to turn up at the facility with cameras, but too late. These images and episodes of dereliction cannot be unseen or reversed. Amun Ra

Both culprit governments disregarded the downhill plunge of the plant for at least 15 years, apparently, too sucked into their own self-importance to notice or act. A problem that with due diligence could have been averted. One can justifiably ask, exactly what was the present government doing for the eighth year, and three elections later in office? There is nothing to show where any positive achievements are presented. A failed years-long international spotlight seizure took precedence, while debt levels skyrocket unchecked, and now there is nothing left to salvage.

Although there were/are available alternatives to halt or significantly reduce the turbo-charged escalation in wide range illnesses, deaths and ample time to unburden the healthcare system, this was ignored and all duty of care disregarded in favor of legislating draconian laws to muzzle the population on the road to dictatorship, and show everyone who is boss/despot. There was absolutely no need for everything to reach this stage with an anticipated unfolding climax.

What Elections? - Unintended Consequences

Personally, I carry no distress if a politician is ever elected by a popularity contest and by people with no intellectually sound dexterity thinking, and I much prefer they are not, as there are no viable options; these types are seen as the conduit through which all evil resides and filters, especially against the lives of Black Afrikan people, for which they were assembled. Nothing they do moves the needle one notch upward for who chooses them to manage economies, and with too many opportunities to act as proxies for whichever country pays them the most, makes them distinctly purposeless, now they are burnt and the world knows that is all they are worth.

Lately, every move they made against us has rolled back and crushed them, they are stuck in the era of forced errors and lost all control over areas they presided and recently seen in a frenzied situation, trying to plug up all the eruptions, but the unraveling has accelerated and no matter how they try or grounds they fork up and break without any concise plans, it changes nothing.

The fact is, although there is substantial documented evidence without any doubt, and living proof the massive health benefits associated with medical marijuana. The bajan PM refused the Black population any access, simply because she never wanted to see us benefit healwise or financially, kept the medicine only for herself, friends, family and business partners, both foreign and local, so naturally the fake marijuana industry they spent multi-millions promoting, where no one in the political arena knew what they were doing from the beginning, outside of for decades smoking and selling when the product was illicit,. While criminalizing Black people only, but suddenly claiming they were all experts, resulting in their go-nowhere industry's immediate collapse, a fitting end to another criminal act of disenfranchisement against the majority population.

The atmosphere is such that most people believe calling an election can only produce "a win" through what those close to the political machinery suggests would be "a third electoral vote rigging." As alleged, but this time using the brand new rolled out "Digital ID System."

We shall see how brazen those who have successfully destroyed even the memory of a socially and economically suppressed, but once peaceful island with immature shenanigans, unprofessionalism; and now scorn all the young Black lives currently lost on a weekly basis to gun violence, as the conspirators responsible. While subjecting voters to even more false promises and much bigger lies, as seen on social media platforms.
