Ancient Kemety Text:

"Hail, thou sycamore of the Ntchrt Nut! Grant thou to me of the water and of air

Colonial Relics - The Fall Of Barbados

Caribbean politicians are colonial relics, leftovers from a bygone era, the ghosts of yesteryear, mascots for multiple new world players/employers, clinging for dear life to prehistoric titles to project self importance. Whose main expertise lay in capturing the most slavish minds by the hundreds of thousands and speaking through them as ventriloquists. The mind washed are then willingly awarded menial jobs of maintaining a dead status quo through every petty means possible, always available to do politician's bidding; passing misinformation from one generation to the next in an unbroken chain of a muddled existence, so social progress never becomes a reality. This is the foundation built on a degraded system barely functioning without any worthwhile upgrades or defining principles.

Every output comes from an unrepentant 1700s perspective and the most profitable ones always exclude Afrikan ascendants. Apparently, we were never meant to attain enough intelligence to see things as they are and not as weaved around us, were never supposed to free ourselves from entrapment. As one minister from the 2018 election put it bluntly believing that people were too dumb to see through her guise in continuation of breaking the ancient Afrikan spirit by boldly stating, "emancipation is a journey," and was promptly reminded this one is still ongoing 150 years later and had to end forthwith. With so many well used avenues in place to utilize the legislature, psychiatric wards, and law enforcement to deliver intimidation while entombed in their world of crimes; were highly convinced this situation which has worked for over 50 years in their favor, would never collapse in front of their faces in this epoch.

Colonial Relics - The Fall Of Barbados

After decades of honing skills of deception, luckily got the opportunity to transfer it to Afrika who had no clue aged apparitions had arrived to suck everyone into a nearly inescapable, catatonic orbit, while concealing a horrid history. They got to work right away throwing up one distraction after another and had we not known who they really were, could have gotten away for numerous timelines and lifetimes to come, passing on layers of destruction from one group to the other, in a well developed, strong link, with Afrika none the wiser.

It is very important to note, none of them were the least bit concerned that important bloodlines in this region were being deliberately left out from every interaction. Had some of us not done certain research and reached out over many years, we would know nothing or developed the means to make sure everyone followed their trail of disaster, until seen and proven. The fact that Barbados misused Afrikan culture, which was vastly criminalized before, they never wanted to see or hear about it, but were more than happy to hijack it and gain influence to wreak havoc, should be a lesson learned.

Colonial spectres do not reside in the same realms as the Afrikan rooted, and are completely cut off from ancient worlds of knowing what else is possible, so are trapped within a criminal sphere, that is all they offer, learned behaviors of violence, bullying, stealing and fraud, world renowned for fearlessly using other country's judiciaries to cover up, so victims never get justice, they then manage to escape racketeering arrests and charges in all the confusion. Over time have exhausted the perversion of western institutions in this way and are targets of investigations; yet still shamelessly misuse international media, and any serious topic to shine a spotlight on themselves and run any number of schemes on the earth's people to exact personal revenge, using the trademark lying and make it sound believable, all gimmicks without boundaries .

Therefore Afrika is a new, untapped frontier with dozens of countries to choose from, regroup and reorganize, but this must never happen. They are quite adept at employing trickery with razor sharp prowess and precision, anything to take, but have nothing of value to give in return that does not demean the Afrikan spirit. So here we are with human trafficking out of Afrika taking centre stage, that they worked so hard to build and hide, and about to be dismantled in such a short space of time, while frantically searching for work arounds.

The only way to prevent continuous abuse of titles and diplomatic passports is removing both from within easy reach, but, unless distributed by the AU and revoked, will have to be also done by those who issued these weapons to black cabinets stuck in a time warp in the first place. This is now happening everywhere as dozens of politicians lose visas and diplomatic passports for one reason or another. Once those tools remain available, Black Afrikan people are at high risk, as the continent is not sufficiently policed for security, therefore, is more or less defenseless against advanced criminal dexterity:

It is truly unfathomable, and unforgivable even knowing our history, there are those amongst us, look alike, but still view us as commodity, willing to capitalize regardless of what we think, say and feel, all the while acting as though they have given rights to dispense such brutish atrocities as utensils of an untethered colonial world. Stranger still, this seems acceptable in some quarters in Afrika when it should be fiercely abolished, this curse of trafficking others embedded on the land, must come with the severest of consequences.

Worse still, to think anyone from Caribbean parliaments is allowed to participate in human trafficking in the 21st century, flies in the face of decency, direct dishonor to ancestors, and shows everyone the continent also has its fossils who have not evolved beyond the basics. When those two groups meet, Afrikan people are endangered. The silver lining presented, people now know what to look out for, all the signs and diversions, especially when they open their mouths about reparations but have no right in that conversation. Then eventually, in no time at all, graduate as accused human traffickers, a huge red flag, greatly disturbing.

Misrepresenting our Interests on the Afrikan Continent - Pushing Back Against Beastly Parliaments

We knew problems would arise when the time came for new beginnings where the natural order appeared and demanded homage for the process. The only thing politicians showed was enacting ways and means to sell opportunities to the undeserving, enabling them to shine and talk hogwash that only benefits them. Taxpayer elected politicians in parliaments carry the shallowest of mindsets, still have no access to knowledge about how deep our lineage runs in Afrika, some deeper than others; will never understand the dimensions. So when they rushed off to the continent to surpass us, they were destined to reveal terrorist tendencies, low frequencies, malignant resolve and a spiteful need to sabotage. With that hatefulness carefully wrapped up and coated in outward fake smiles, clinging to the celebrity cloak as a prop. Only a few people saw through the charade and knew it was going to culminate in devastation with Afrikans at the receiving end, it was even worse than some thought; when they successfully used bait and switch.

Since the 1970s the dishonest overseer parliament class told the trusting population of the day that what happens in the treasury, vat and pension fund is none of their business. These humble souls believed them so never questioned anything, and truly thought politicians were "educated," and had their best interests as a priority, because they possessed paper mill degrees, but did not know they were just schooled. Many people are still not aware that the education system Barbados received came from the UK, after emancipation, and not from Errol Barrow, who was only the vehicle used, as he too was subjected to schooling under the English system.

Little did they know how far from the truth their misbelief political management are somehow more intelligent than anyone else on the island is; then it became a part of the cultural setting with each generation realizing they are not supposed to query anything to do with taxpayer's money, required to look up to and glorify politicians, no matter what they do; and if any questions were asked by those who did not believe that lie, it was violently opposed, so as not to change or disrupt the narrative.

Misrepresenting our Interests on the Afrikan Continent - Pushing Back Against Beastly Parliaments

This is the second time within the last three years the World Bank has addressed the deteriorating education delivery on the island. Articles were written about this sad state of affairs, where improvements are neglected for specific reasons to the detriment of school age arrivals. Who are set to become the next society builders but starting out at a distinct disadvantage, because of selfish parliaments: where every innocent rotating group experiences steadily elevated trauma that has finally reached crisis proportions over the last two generations, and most youth are now lost to the desolation.

The wickedness in place to separate the majority population from their money or any insight into what the cabinet does with it fully revealed itself in June of 2026, when the top employee at the central bank, in a recent post launch interview of a local app was asked by a young intern from one of the media houses: how much developing and launching the app cost, and was immediately told, he cannot have that information, and asked if he was the one paying for it, why would he want to know, he was asked, to the horror of everyone who could not grasp in 2026, the government and its satellites were still instigating an environment of heightened fear and despondency to prevent anyone asking about taxpayer's business, expenditures in the parliament, or the central bank also funded with tax dollars.

A legitimate question was met with the harshest reply and greatest disrespect. Real journalists on the island have been ridiculed, set up, broken, exiled or imprisoned for much less. The young man's colleagues looked at him as though he committed a crime for asking a valid, intelligent question, but political pimps underestimated what would unfold. People had enough of the injustices and pushed back with never before seen strength.

This is what we noticed for the past half century; the population is seen as numbers, window dressing and thrown scraps for bare survival, are not supposed to ask any questions about their welfare, but the billions generated by their presence goes to the criminal class of politicians and their violently vicious partners in the minority community. However, due to the unforeseen backlash received, unexpected and fearless, the central bank governor apologized for his arrogance, begged forgiveness, admitted he was wrong and gave the public the cost associated with the app's rollout so far.

A rare occurrence, never happened before in the history of the island where a public official was taken down a notch by the public, and immediately humbled himself, but there is always much more to such a sudden previously unseen retreat, stay tuned. Therefore, this young journalist must be protected so he is not further abused like others who came before him were by the beast parliament and their agents. The most recent being Timothy Slinger for reporting on human interest stories.

Therefore, we fully expected Barbados to overreach in Afrika, unduly confident in their rushed frenzy and abilities to maintain a well practiced chokehold on the population, then finding new routes and ruses to keep Afrikans in place. While the collective on both continents remain well sequestered, and make sure they are incapable of escaping from new age plots personally known were coming down the line, and they alone profit immensely from that insider knowledge/trading with others footing the bill so things never get out of their control.

They did manage to get in front of it for the last eight years nearly undetected before it blew up on them. With loyalty first and foremost to the deepest pockets who engage with and pay them, that is their philosophy without apology, never to the voters who give them the status and salary to which they have become accustomed and all of it devoid of ancestral gratitude, which never factors into the equation. Politicians disassociate themselves to keep the valuable connections needed to fund ultra expensive, flamboyant lifestyles, as creatures of an illusion, and are extremely disloyal to anyone else, once the money keeps flowing in their direction, unless someone else pays them more.

Afrika is aware by now, if they do not put an instant stop to this evolving and potentially protracted, revolving crime against Afrikan people, it will never end once these loose cannons, who infiltrated, have the freedom to operate on the continent, and transport all their western criminal networks to Afrika to run limitless rackets, unfamiliar to many presidents. In addition, the continent's reputation will suffer and be at stake since they do not know the magnitude of crimes already committed, interconnecting chronology, or the prospect for massive escalation with the introduction of new ones, but will become the fall guy for enabling newer criminal syndicates from the west to establish themselves.

Misrepresenting our Interests on the Afrikan Continent - Pushing Back Against Beastly Parliaments

That is the only attraction to Afrika right now, the ease with which they can comfortably build the next criminal organization/empire, or a slew of them to gain great wealth, and where the trappings of titles and diplomatic passports make things much less complicated and restricted; now things have gotten so hot in the west and most are seeking refuge for the survival of criminal syndicates.

The insolence shown in narrow minded opportunist island management, whose recent ancestors vindictively punished our ancestors and us for accepting Afrika as our homeland, but now see it through a colonial lense to divide amongst themselves, sell, exploit its people to the fullest, and move their mafia houses to Afrika. This should make Afrikan presidents sit up straight, shudder and display much more vigilance, caution, and triggered to protect the ancestral space.

We know all those maneuvers were also designed to prevent us making any headway at a reconnection, but little did they know, some of us do not need to sit around and wait. We never needed them, as they do not carry certain components, so basically are of no use as empty shells, vessels unknowing of certain spaces, and prohibited from entry, effectively locked out, giving us what we need to watch their movements. One of the first concerns is the toxicity they and their business partners exude, poisons the atmosphere and leaves trails of blight hovering all around.

The thought they would put in place their families, friends and collaborators, hawk diplomatic passports to those with cash from Europe, North America and anywhere else who wanted to exploit Afrika, with such determination, leaving nothing for us and only the trickle down remnants to their loyal red cult, drove them to extremes. This is the morally depraved actions of the reprehensibly egotistical narcissist who always lacked integrity. Their first response is to preserve themselves, protect destructive habits and behaviors to everyone else's detriment.

Misrepresenting our Interests on the Afrikan Continent - Pushing Back Against Beastly Parliaments

As stated previously, it is a major embarrassment island overseer took it upon itself to rampage through Afrika nearly unstoppable, making it seem they represented everyone, and had consent, despite our strong public resistance, and objection to them being there from day one. Which was pointedly ignored: but we saw how they were welcomed; and knew not one president knew anything about them or would be more cautious, and had to find out the hard way.

No one needs their name attached to lifelong sordid stories or to the titled politicians and minority partners to whom they belong. Misleaders who had all the time in the world to do the right things; refused to protect Black populations even though well compensated, but can always find someone else to pay them much more and defend their best interests while dismissing the people. Afrika does not need any more duplicity at this juncture either, they have their own to contend with that destroys Black lives daily on the continent. Add-ons will only serve to intensify the treachery.

The people in Barbados and the Caribbean have also suffered greatly because of such betrayals, those aware, except for the adoring puppets/followers at the lower end of the totem pole who have no idea what is really happening after all these decades, too adoring of politicians and are always sealed in darkness.

None of what occurred reflects on us, once we did not keep quiet about who they really are, as so many others did, covering up what will also negatively impact them and future generations. As things stand, only their hardcore supporters feel the humiliation of exposure raining down. It amazed everyone who knew the truth that anyone could feel proud of what they did, wanted them to succeed and applauded the parasitic parade into the continent. This must not continue, there is nothing to salvage, all will be revealed.
