Handing Out a Reparations Manifesto While Building a Network To Enslave Afrikans in the Caribbean

By Empress Wuraola Oya

Were we not here to observe the distribution of a reparations manifesto to Caricom governments and the AU, while an unfolding scandal erupted surrounding trafficking pregnant Afrikan women: right along with enticing a continent of people with what can only be described as incomparable depravity, lack of morality; we would have thought we entered a Twilight Zone. Appalled cannot describe feelings when people confirmed this has happened for the last five years, all the while smiling in the faces of Afrikan leaders, but long, well sharpened swords were busily stabbing them in their backs repeatedly.

Until there is evidence any Afrikan leader was involved in this self-defeatist and criminally destructive parade of self-endangerment, we can only point fingers in one direction, Slaverbados, who are quite capable of acting independently, along with the help of whomever is paying them, while demonizing their masters in words only.

We watched the villains welcomed by Afrika with much fanfare, who facilitated the settling of consulates during the open lies told to everyone about reconnecting us to the continent. While the Mouth ran incessantly and sickly, we knew it was all an act and said as much. We never once saw where Afrikan presidents mistreated them or ran any scams on the ascendants in the Caribbean, I am yet to see anything of that nature. The first red flag for me was when the Covid celebrity zoomed off to the continent as if she was on fire, and officially headed, not to an Afrikan country, but directly to Morocco, a known and unapologetic slaver country still, that is when it clicked, we were in for nothing but trouble ahead.

Although knowing the capabilities, people on the ground are dumbstruck at the brazen display, many shocked, visibly shaken to learn these well planned events have happened for years since heavily pregnant Afrikan women arrived on the island in cycles, depending on baby delivery dates, and spread across the terrain to what is unofficially birthing farms. An already established old blighted throwback, an equivalent to breeding farms through centuries of rapes still haunting the island hundreds of years later.

Handing Out a Reparations Manifesto While Building a Network To Enslave Afrikans in the Caribbean

Some plantations stand as a stark reminder and symbol of our ancestor's abject torment. The new age birthing support is now managed by colonial riffraff in black face, paid for by those Afrikans who can afford to, and free for those who cannot pay, with no idea their children are born under the infamous Barbados Slave Codes, for future reference. Then when caught, the Mouth and its gang, relabeled it "birth tourism," whatever that means, so I suppose we can expect to hear about slavery tourism next and legislated into law, any justification to cover up human trafficking and modern day slavery.

The circulating videos seen for the past three or four years, with new ones created, told a whole story about Barbados, fully curated and wrapped in fantasies that took on a more ominous tone with each publication; even I wonder about the mental state of the recruiters from Scambados and the recruited out of Nigeria who posted this content. Afrikans were subjected to a yarn about the island and its passport, then the deliverer disparaged all 55 Afrikan countries' passports in the process, as paid, claiming Barbados' is much better than any in Afrika. Well, we are still to see them prove that claim.

People can travel to more countries, but that is where any benefits end, especially in majority White majority countries, as a slave society born and bred, poses no threat to anyone in any metropolis, so you are welcome until it is time to leave. One may get hell traveling to other islands unless you have a dual passport or were born there, but Afrikans were also invited to Trinidad & Tobago, Grenada and a couple other islands as well by the presenter, so I do not know why a slave society's passport can suddenly open doors in European and North American countries for Afrikans. Here is where the devisers of that plot and their local storytellers in Afrika, misdirected Afrikans and smeared every Afrikan country on the continent, certainly not caring about any of the history:

Handing Out a Reparations Manifesto While Building a Network To Enslave Afrikans in the Caribbean

As if the prior statement was not bad enough, then came the boast that Barbados has more opportunities than Afrika. I immediately wondered if there were none in Afrika, why would Barbados bother to open four or five consulates in just as many countries in such a short period of time, not for us, but to aid minority criminal syndicates and themselves in engaging in big business aka, high crimes and misdemeanors, even going as far as to personally escort them around Ghana, hunting collaborators with whom to commence operations, apparently the prospects in Afrika are not for Afrikans, or for us, but only for Barbados' parliament and their gangs. The dishonesty in disparaging the continent while actively seeking to take control of all options is worthy of punishment.

The island has never been a place of progress or anything meaningful for those of Afrikan descent. Once what was created by our most recent ancestors post emancipation was stolen and redistributed by the Prime Monster of the day to the common class minority groups in the 1970s, all within the last fifty-six years and still happening.

So if you are not a card carrying member of the corrupt element or the most intrepid, agreeable, docile slave minds, you have a life of suffering, as is happening now in real time. Unless you leave and look toward bigger countries to have any form of survival where you can utilize your skills, free from nepotism, cronyism, and political interference that brands you a nobody like what happens in Barbados, but that door has also slammed shut, helped by the same "Tek de Visa," and now severely restricted even for Barbados passport holders, and the Mouth is well aware, since she was the one helped trigger the whole showdown with the US, who knew they were selling passports, and now all countries have followed suit.

Another direct insult to Afrika paid for by traitors in their PR stunt who are proving themselves as capable of just about anything to take down Afrikans, further reduce, and continue to break the Afrikan spirit. When we thought things couldn't get any worse, we were proven so wrong. Obviously those consulates were not opened to process work permits or any type of visas either, but strictly to expand misinformation across the continent to denigrate Afrika, spread discontent amongst populations and through well versed false promises, manipulate millions of Afrikans to leave and populate the Caribbean region to live in poverty controlled by corrupt governments, that is how they capitalize on Black people's existence. In this case, vilify ancestral lands, make these hardship islands seem more attractive than Afrika, then run a pipeline out of the continent. Slaverbados' contribution to new age slavery, all the while lustily singing the reparations song, they have outdone themselves.

The monstrous charade continued as Barbados was painted as "not racist like that," advertising the island as majority Black without mentioning all the baggage that comes with the history. Unfortunately we beg to differ. I personally had an experience one time speaking to someone from the UK, who resided here and was told Barbados is racist second only to South Afrika, surpassing the UK, US and Europe against Afrikan descended people. We know the vileness of apartheid was transplanted from South Afrika in the 1980s, combined with the racism that arose from centuries of enslavement and both ultimately normalized.

Naturally, as someone who was raised and lived here off and on for many decades, can concur, with evidence. This racism promotion is engineered and preserved by the parliament for the bribery it generates. Where stone cold racists get to practice their valueless, demonic craft undisturbed, and employers are allowed to commit any crime on the island, since laws do not apply to them only to the Afrikan descended, rabid classism, then refuse to pay staff, national insurance benefits etc, and can threaten to call up the Prime Monster and have an employee fired for complaining about any of the above.

They are allowed to put their greedy, grimy hands in taxpayer's and pensioner's money. So when done living a life of criminal privilege absconds from the island with what they stole, leaving the economy in a deficit and unpayable debt, a shambles, because parliament Monsters are the ones receiving payment, causing more borrowing and begging. Until the next group rotates in shortly after in a never ending unbreakable cavalcade, usurping every opportunity belonging to the majority, in cycles. We can safely presume, they are looking for a more weakened population of Afrikans who know nothing about the setup to victimize, exploit and terrorize, and once trapped, unlikely to complain, can do nothing about their current circumstances: an ongoing predicament for decades before understanding what is really happening, but by then it would be too late, as victims would have already been mentally, spiritually beaten down, have families and accept their fates by becoming submissive.

With the damage done, compliance then becomes intergenerational, seeped in and cemented by colonial schooling, miseducation, a manageable group worthy of a Barbados passport, a well practiced tried and proven strategy.

Burning Bridges to Afrika

Even those in the AU who may carry the same propensity should by now be feeling disrespected, highly hated, and insulted, if they possess any ethics, integrity, self-respect and self-love, at what Barbados has done. They have seen this near successful attempt at re-enslavement to completely diminish the Afrikan spirit, and poised to remove millions of people from Afrika while they remain in a dazed state, dazzled by useless bajan talk, a follow up 2.0 "greatest crime against Afrikan humanity," this time without shackles and chains, but equally hazardous.

So we await their response to protect Afrikans and the entire continent from whom we know as violent wannabe slave masters/dictators, who look like us, and their organization of low grade minority opportunists: since the networks are now well entrenched and they have gotten this far, will not leave unless removed, dismantled, as they are already invested with dispersed tentacles. To reiterate, Barbados should never be seen as a representative of Afrikan ascendants, given the long, ugly story attached. They could no longer hide the absolute disdain they carry for Afrika and its leadership, it was just a matter of time before the masks slipped and the acting fell apart, with true motives revealed.

Burning Bridges to Afrika

Besides, with the information they accumulated from interacting in certain conglomerates, they would know much more about you than you know about them. That is what happened to us, we knew nothing about ourselves for twenty generations, but the Mouth and its Mouthlettes did, none were going to tell us anything, not in 1966 or 2066, as there is nothing in it for them, cannot monetize and too backward to see the possibilities; so as a teenager, I noticed the smirks, absolutely hated, a word I do not use lightly, how they looked at me, relayed my concerns to others that they knew things about us, could see it in their faces, were hiding something, and was labeled crazy for my insights.

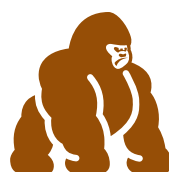

A blueprint used to beat back resistance, with threats of a psychiatric institution, however, I refused to back down; and finally, there they were working against us throughout our lives, from the cradle to the grave, based entirely on what they knew, all of it uncovered after over 50 years, they could not conceal it anymore. I would not like to think I am the only one taking this very personally.

A coconut

What was revealed during the showoff phase is their retirement plan, and refusal to stop until it is time to cash in the package, all I can say is good for them since they got it all figured out: but man makes plans, however, Our Divine makes explicit, precise decisions. Amen Ra

It has become quite obvious, they would collude with anyone, go to any lengths and knowing their insatiable, small minded nature, would do anything to cut us all out to steal everything, as their side hustle, including the mythical reparations they use as a trojan horse against Afrika, part of the mission.

Burning Bridges to Afrika

I will never accept colonially schooled politicians, a regressive trajectory, rather than the ancestrally educated and connected, of which there are none in this region, as any representatives on my Afrikan ancestral lands. The last paragraph in this excerpt is adequate explanation:

"Pachamama

Reparations discourses are merely a continuation of the structure of Whiteness.

Cases to contemplate.

While the European Union is paying lip service to and providing cover for the continuation of a White supremacist logic, the actual war on Afrika, long declared, for her resources, moves ahead at pace on all fronts.

Why appear to be interested in repairing anything when the same kind of imperial war is also renewed against Russia? Russia, a country with the largest stockpile of nuclear weapons. The White people seem to have lost their fear of these.

Even with their house niggers like Hilary Beckles and Mia Mottley in tow, waxing poetically as they provide window dressing, cast sand into the eyes of the blind, the wars for resources continue at a heightened tempo. Reparations?"

Sixty-five years after Franz Fanon, over fifty years after Kwame Nkrumah and here we are, a hundred years after Marcus Garvey the quality of black persons in parliaments have degraded significantly, now we have those who would use these greats and others in their wicked repertoire, ongoing schemes and a treasure trove of lies against Blackness, for covert operations to destroy what is left, to brainwash and defraud Afrikans into paying for their own and their children's future enslavement. A most horrific and degenerate sham in a quest to be at the top of a collapsing pile. Amen Ra
