Barbados Finally Admits to Modern Day Slavery on the Island
By Empress Wuraola Oya

The spokesperson for the worker's union, as a senate MP declared what has been known for four decades, but in so doing exposed the lesser of the three ongoing evils, in their minds, during an involuntary confession they were trying to spin to the government's advantage. This is no one count, all the protracted wrongdoing must be calculated as a whole, there is decades worth. The population wants to know for starters, in the spirit of public interest, and the multiple taxpayer contracts given to the two companies, over the same inordinately long period.

Where is the investigation into the Jada Group/Infra for this particular criminal breach? They are not exempt from scrutiny into nearly two lifetimes of accusations attributed to documented violations of locals, migrants alike, and they are not the only ones, but none have ever been held culpable. Making matters worse it is reported the government and all the agencies involved have known about the crimes against the current migrants for quite some time, and did absolutely nothing about it: the worker's union rep/MP said "18 months," some said longer, until they saw a way to once again exploit the situation in their favor, which backfired, a gross miscalculation:

No one wants to see business as usual, with more modern day slaves added from Afrika or other now unstable jurisdictions, especially with multiple islands forced to take in people expelled from the US, who do not know the culture of slavery on the island. With the government still putting on a posturing act trying to smooth things over like this is a misdemeanor that deserves no punishment: but the minority criminal element and their disdain for local and international laws in relation to felonies against the majority population remain and continue undisturbed, in the middle of all the corruption stretching back to the 1970s.

Since it is known that at least one such company holds filing cabinets of evidence, and are not afraid to use it against both administrations, we are sure they are not the only ones to keep that type of insurance, just in case the politicians they own get out of hand, and decide they are bringing charges against them for crimes committed.

Barbados Finally Admits to Modern Day Slavery on the Island

Therefore no one needs a compromised government held hostage by their business partners, all these decades, under duress, are non functioning, in a form of barely reciprocal intimidation. Everyone has noticed for many years that white collar criminals in the minority group never face justice no matter the depravity connected to their output. The police are told not to touch them, and are threatened by the culprits. One phone call to the Prime Monster of the day, all it takes to end a career; and has happened for too many years.

This is unhealthy for any country, particularly for the exploited who are caught up in the games played; especially when said minorities are privy to the people's business and therefore make their own plans around what does not concern them, to their benefit, and never think of consequences because of the government protection they enjoy.

With a brand new transatlantic trade unfolding we can guarantee they know and are already prepared with self-serving gimmicks in place to reap millions of dollars, by stealing slave labor and everything in the treasury that is not nailed down. We cannot have these tiny groups on the loose, already seen as untouchable, while the slave routes run smoothly and the whole operation takes on an invisible aura.

Here is where an international investigation is also warranted for the sophisticated, multi-faceted, super-refined foray into cross continent human trafficking, to identify who else is involved. This is not a 1600s debut with open savagery ruling the roost, this has become debonaire where millions of Afrikans or other slaves can be flown directly across the Atlantic and from other continents unseen, in comfort and pay their way; paying to become slaves is the new normal.

Barbados Finally Admits to Modern Day Slavery on the Island

The foundation and bridge have already been built using subterfuge successfully, with years of effort and funding expended. Barbados has too many slave masters affiliated with the parliament that need removing from the landscape permanently, and all are disgustingly greedy, unrepentant blood suckers, just like the parliament gang, the reason they work so well together.

The dangers now lay in the reinstatement of slavery on the island by the illegal government so desperate to make it work, and is still using Bob Marley in its anti-black campaign, again making a mockery in its bid to mask criminal intent. Caricom should never allow Barbados any more leeway to turn the region into a slave port, by installing a well cultivated, fully established, locally grown, barbaric criminal syndicate presiding as overlords, to bring further disrepute to the entire island chain, and then target other groups for enslavement. While marching everyone to their doom under the fictional "global leader" fabrication, the mission.

Politicians Sold Afrika A Brightly Glowing Pig In A Bag

In addition, we are sure none of it will be abandoned, paused maybe, but all indications are the slavery networks are intact and will reorganize to the detriment of victims of this long haul atrocity after the wide exposure, but only if allowed. Many people who helped in its organization will try to distance themselves because of the brilliance of the spotlight shown, and prefer to remain hidden as silent intimates. Which is impossible right now, since the optics shown is frightening for those trying to maintain a certain professional global image, as one explained recently: being directly linked to low grade slavers was not part of the itinerary.

The fame seeking government publicly identified itself as the face of this new age beastliness and will have to deal with the fallout. The same politicians are notorious for perfecting and inflicting mental slavery, the more this is understood the better avoided, this is their Karma.

Generally, 2-bit slavers who have gotten beside themselves will never let an opportunity go to waste, not after over seventy years of tradition. Local people and those across the region are warned again, do not go to Afrika under any developed Barbados government initiative, you will be going as a slave with the existing Slave Codes firmly attached.

Similarly, Africans were told, do not come to the island's still in vogue slave port, a clearing house, under any government program, you do not want to find out to what extent those Slave Codes are still active, and how well they work. Go to Afrika as a free person, visit the island from the continent as a free Afrikan, but cut out the middleman/woman slaver, who will make arrangements to confine you within their narrow circles on either continent.

The island currently has an economy where the cost of living has risen sharply by approximately 20% since 2022 as reported, that makes it very far removed from a paradise, destitution is rife for residents, and can only feel like a hellish nightmare on earth for slaves transported, if they manage to survive. Afrika/Nigeria was obviously sold a glowing pig in a bag by this cabinet.

We are left to wonder how many Afrikan countries the scam was practiced on and worked to perfection, seeing there is such a wide playing field, and the bajan Mouth was running incessantly pulling everyone into its web and orbit: but since anticipating that, Afrika will be apprised of the truth individually across 54 countries. The cabinet cannot get away with this disruptive scheme of enslaving people so that politicians can attain wealth and display clown caricatures as mimic masters.

Things have now been stirred up to such a degree, we recently saw where a public notice was released by the owner of the Jada Group/Infra, of port ferdinand fame, distancing himself from his CEO who managed the company for decades, and whom he left in charge:

Meanwhile the premeditated pauperization of the island continues unabated, ensuring the potential local quarry are trapped and cannot escape. The government is quite cognisant it is completely, irreversibly implicated and cannot touch dozens of minorities and their companies engaged in numerous illegal activities, due to its very close involvement in the same, as dedicated, loyal partners. Rocking any boats could see the phony celebrity and fake pedigrees, underlings and their names emblazoned in headlines and starring as future fellow prison inmates. The taxpaying public will have to apply the requisite pressure to ensure this little bajan criminal enterprise of minorities and their politicians is dismantled and demolished, while demanding full accountability.

The people are the ones with the vested interest as it was their money, properties/estates, and prospects, all stolen, in more than two life cycles. The governments cannot possibly expect taxpayers who pay them generous salaries, with perks, and early pensions, sit back and allow families to be railroaded into a new enslavement package by public servants who consider themselves world leaders from the avenue of beg, borrow, depend; while destroying any future to which the population's offspring are entitled. Maybe the insipid brain dead red and ready cult of followers, who despite the lauded "98% literacy," claim, still cannot reconcile or differentiate between stage performances and reality, a permanent condition, but will fall for that and any other folly coming from the parliament.

However, not the intelligent, independent minded thinkers who see things exactly as they are and not as illustrated by a pack of slavers.

Politicians Sold Afrika A Brightly Glowing Pig In A Bag

When politicians only aspire to become millionaires and boast about material things, although cannot account for where they acquired any of the money, which does not align with monthly salaries, as the bogus pedigree is bragging about having the status, after fleecing taxpayers for millions. Neither can they tell the public where the billions disappeared, as no audited financial reports are ever produced for scrutiny.

The recently retired Auditor General spent the last twenty years begging for those reports and was ignored, laughed at and vilified. Then they expect your grandchildren to work and repay what they took, while the politicians are the only ones who prosper; they have no value on this earth except as bloodsucking vampires. The only intent is to live off enslaving others, and what they fraudulently acquire from taxpayers, do no honest work, but with full bank accounts, run off at the mouth tirelessly. Barbados has become a failed state.
