

african online publishing

Kush Quarterly Magazine.

Malkia Wa Walfalme

Issue /49 January - June 2041

Queen of the Monarchs Empress Wuraola Oya
Embracing the Entire Global Space

Read our book Pages 24-27 in Kush Quarterly Magazine

and on:

african-online-
publishing.webflow.io

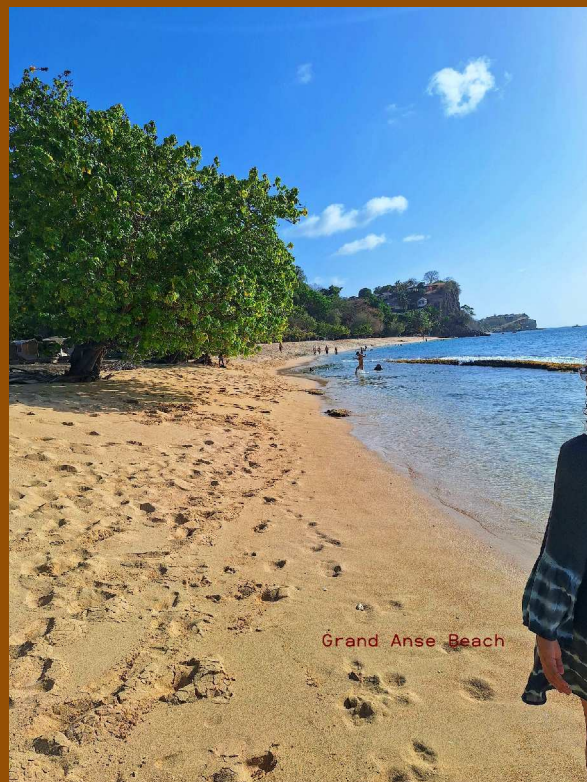

Table of Contents

Page 2.....Editorial

Skipping Shackles And Chains And Trying To Own Our Reparations

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

Our Afrakan ancestors have given us all the healing images we need; we are just too blind to see them with our colonized eyes. Our ancestors have left us all the written documents we need, in stone, papyrus and wood, we are just too illiterate to innerstand the liberating messages with our colonized minds. Our ancestors have given us all the healing sciences and mathematical formulas we need to liberate ourselves in the architecture structures they left behind in ancient Kemet and Kash. We are so out of tune with nature we can no longer intuitively feel the healing sciences right in our faces or over our heads and even under our feet, because we are out of our Afrakan minds!

Excerpt taken from Spiritual Warriors are Healers by: Mfundishi Jhutyms Ka N Heru Hassan K Salim

Ma'at
Divine Order, Balance

Editorial

Skipping Shackles And Chains And Trying To Own Our Reparations By Empress Wuraola Oya

We are still trying to wrap our heads around Afrikans making enemies of Black Americans for no valid reason, this was so unfortunate, and have now managed to unleash the unknown on themselves. The one group of people needed in your corner during any fallout, those bridges were burnt. Therefore, the series of events that occurred over such a long time frame was impractical. What I observed 20 years ago was definitely never going to end well. Black Americans are not perfect, none of us are, but in my estimation they displayed an amazing, and extraordinarily, almost superhuman level of patience for literally decades.

While watching Afrikans play that self-defeating role and take it to its limit. So here is where such mindsets need to back up a bit. There can be no shortcuts, if you want to take our place, first you will have to wear shackles and chains for an inordinately lengthy period, that was the initial nightmare for our ancestors; you are fortunate the shackles are not physical anymore but chains are wrapped tightly around the mind instead, with invisible scarring, which is just as bad, but we will get back to that in another article. Then drugged, dragged across entire continents, and everything else that came after and accompanied by the followup until today.

Except many of you recently did it willingly in the comfort of planes flying to this region with hands and feet unfettered, based entirely on luring lies and long empty talk. Voluntarily is the operative word here, and with the same end result, only more refined. None of the other steps can be bypassed after that. Taking the place of Caribbean Afrikans is equally difficult as attempting to do so with Black Americans, once you know, it explains so much more.

It would be much easier to demand your presidents stop selling you out to everyone who looks nothing like you or them and finally do their jobs, as paid, by you: rebuild the continent for Afrikan people, and utilize the vast mountains of resources for Afrikans only. Protect the people by using the many tools available. Nowhere else on earth has as much, or such major opportunities for wealth generation and economic, socio-cultural cohesion as the continent. Despite what the bajan Liar and her squadron of imps posted around Afrika about no available prospects or a passport that is inferior.

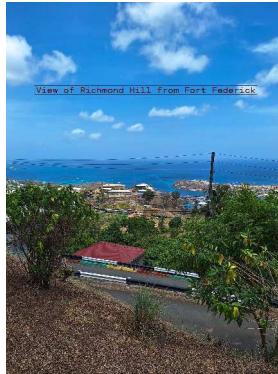

Editorial
By Empress Wuraola Oya

Skipping Shackles And Chains And Trying To Own Our Reparations

Were Afrikans paying attention they would recognize the way they are viewed, perceived, and acknowledge that the best and only thought which entered into the heads of Barbados was to traffic the Afrikan unborn right off the continent, still attached to their mothers' womb. Along with all the other victims who believed the false advertising spread across 54 countries, that is the lengths they went to stalk Afrikan lands looking for slaves.

These are like minded, with no scruples or sentimentality whatsoever, not now nor in the future. When it comes to enslavement, the phony pan africans should have seemed familiar and what they represent well outlined to those who were misled, because that is the only thing in your future, it is all they have to offer. Slave traders and thieves masquerading as caring about Afrika. Usurpers who look just like you, the most ruthless kinds.

So while conditions in the US were not ideal, nowhere is, most who believed the bajan Liar, and have not been already deported back to Nigeria, are now trapped on the island as slaves, and do not know it yet, maybe never will. They did not even bother with niceties, after eight years and heads filled with fake celebrity cotton wool, they felt comfortable and fearlessly did it right in our faces; were they not exposed, no one would know how they set up Afrikans. Many are of the bloodlines that helped kidnap their own so long ago, and got snatched themselves. Many of them can be found in parliaments, carrying the very same mentality, but pretending respectability and decked out in colonial titles, attire, and smiles. That is who we deal with on a daily basis, the hustling dregs of the earth.

Afrikan presidents past and present, cannot say they did not know our story or location; out of everyone else, including us, they knew all along. Since we only found out who we were and where we came from very recently. The newer ones in political life on the continent had that information decades before we did; as some of them in the 1960s and 70's came visiting the Caribbean, met with PMs, and of course were also in the US, at the UN and everywhere else, this is on record. We understand now they chose not to share any of this with Afrikan populations. Had Caribbean and US history been properly taught in schools, with an element of humanity, and not the washed out version missing most of the truth, that was miseducation. Leaving out what was badly needed to navigate environs that are truly alien to Afrikans migrating to the US, this caused a massive fracture.

Know Your History It Erases The Mystery - Professor James Smalls

Skippping Shackles And Chains And Trying To Own Our Reparations

The continent would never find itself in this situation had it been handled better, differently. Shortsightedness caused that lapse. I do not see how they can move forward now without crucial information about the west, distributed through education. Particularly since it is needed now more than ever, due to the circumstances in which both Afrika and the Caribbean placed themselves, and must face the responsibility. While everything unravels in the west.

I can only speak of Barbados, but they too are incredibly myopic as they had eight years to disseminate knowledge about Afrika and also failed, too busy trying to enslave Afrikans, too much nontaxable wealth, quick cash attached to that business plan to see, do or care about anything else while operating in stealth.

Therefore, presidents should be warning their people of being corralled in the Caribbean Americas as property, remorselessly exploited and oppressed. Instead of colluding with Caribbean slavers against us with divisive overtones. Both groups put populations at a distinct disadvantage and at great risk. Both can share the blame for what happened. I mentioned a few times, if the parliament did not relax colonial laws to educate about Afrika in the last one hundred years, there was no way they were going to do so in another one or two hundred. They had ample opportunities, refused and took the most covert, distasteful path instead.

I know personally of Black Americans who saw where it was all headed and put out many alerts, but no one paid attention, so here they are back at square one. Although knowing how everything was starting to reduce markedly but unseen; at the time, I could only sit and wait for events to run its course, before taking a stand. Americans had access to their Afrikan story centuries before we did, which gave them an advantage, as that knowledge was banned in Barbados and across the Caribbean for over one hundred years, still is to a degree, and on statute books in many islands as culturally illegal. Hence the reason for mass-produced political talking liars to fill the void (the huge gaping hole in their heads) so slave minds have something to hold on to and stay in line.

Everyone will have to do personal research for real answers or get none. You will be badly misinformed following any government versions or directives, as it is meant to deliberately misdirect to defend and protect an anti-Afrikan criminal system, managed by blacks. People went to prison, were exiled and families harassed every generation to keep Our Story out of the islands and heads of Afrikan descents. In contrast, the US had much literary work collected from as early as the 1600s, some say even before, on our ancestral story. Real Pan Afrikan minds in Barbados were killed, or went to prison for even possessing such books, and their children detained by police and questioned. It is still labeled "forbidden knowledge," on islands.

As stated from Khemmennu:

I am he who made sky and earth, formed the mountains and created what is above.

I am he who made the waters and created the celestial wave...

Excerpt taken from Spiritual Warriors are Healers by: Mfundishi Jhutyms Ka N Heru Hassan K Salim

© O House of Oduduwa Ile Ife the Black Afrikan
Queendom of Kush

Skipping Shackles And Chains And Trying To Own Our Reparations

Hence the anger at the bajan impersonator, while in Afrika as an actor, so as to charm slaves and entice them, the very same weapon that criminalized the Afrikan centered in this region, and tore their lives apart, was held out as a carrot in the present and misused in reverse. One of the most evil crimes devised to reenslave Afrikans drawing them to the Caribbean.

While still punishing the long gone victim's descents today out of spiteful maliciousness over a hundred years later. That is all they do, use the gift of breath and life to work against the people who pay them monthly. Including the additional perks they receive, but that still does not stop them taking money from others to make sure populations remain helpless. With the new age aim solely to revive slavery and make money to share amongst themselves, in the most imperceptible ways, and saw some success on the island until early July 2026 when the government backed themselves into a corner and had to publicly confess that a white company they contracted for decades, in bed with just as long, treated Cubans, Columbians and Indians in the most horrid slave-like manner.

That is the rule on the island, be it hotel, construction or any other area of employment, they insist on a slavery theme. Locals have complained for decades, got nowhere and they are now looking elsewhere for people who do not know what is happening to subjugate, dominate, abuse them and dress it up in a shiny new package as something different. Everyone must remember all of this is done by a deceptive black face in real time, and is generational. So enter Afrikans who should be glad people are monitoring the situation and hopefully not too many Nigerians or none at all remain captured on the island.

© O House of Oduduwa Ile Ife the Black Afrikan Queendom of Kush

Skipping Shackles And Chains And Trying To Own Our Reparations

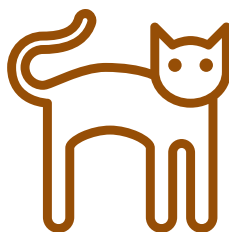

During the harshest junctures of our ancestor's journey, Black Americans did not waste any time, proactively got to work, and did their due diligence. Were it not for them and many other unsung heroes in the Caribbean, none of whom came from parliaments, we would know nothing at all, since politicians said nothing, never planned to: and would shamelessly take money from everyone on earth for another thousand years, to make sure we never find out what could save us; so that their little colonial world of illusion, with the frills and certain individual freedoms remain intact, for which they all gleefully volunteer.

Caribbean politicians created a hellscape and Afrikan presidents joined them:

Trump unleashes Hell On Antigua, Dominica, Grenada

Source: St. Vincent Times

<https://youtu.be/ASrY5X2XnAE>

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

The narrative started changing in the US around 2004 when some goats in Texas and others in the southern US started this lie. Afrikans now domiciled in the west came over consciously from Afrika as interns they said, there was never any slavery according to them. Intern, a word that did not even exist in the 1400s, until the early 1900s when it entered the English dictionary; in the 1920's it applied to medical students only, and centuries before that, to the church network. Then the UK jumped into the act and totally decimated the Windrush descendants, revealing that was not the case.

All I wanted to know was, who the hell puts interns?, indentured servants? or forced immigrants? in shackles and chains. This only happened to Afrikans, and later to the latin admixtures, domiciled and found scattered across the Americas. While none of those with the same labels coming out of Wales, Scotland, UK, Ireland, China or India had any such strictures, and were allowed to leave after seven years of servitude to go wherever they wanted, emigrate to any country, and hold as many passports, as free people: but that never happened in our case, is still not an option.

We were not allowed to keep the British nationality we were born under, it was stripped away using the guise of nonexistent independence and replaced with treacherous politicians. Well the new age lie failed to gain traction shortly after it debuted due to push back, so it was abandoned.

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

Fast forward to 2026 and we are told that Afrikans were undereducated to believe the same fantasy, so what about the museums and libraries, are they not described as slave museums displaying what our ancestors were sold for, mere worthless trinkets still on display. How they were captured, to whom they were sold, and what traitors got in return.

I am sure there are multiple places for that purpose in Nigeria, Ghana, Senegal for sure and other countries also. So who were those innocent people kidnapped through village chiefs, kingdoms etc, and taken then, if not those in the Americas? Some of the stories about why Afrikans do not have the complete history seems to be missing many important pieces.

However, aching to jump the line onto our reparations train is a gross idea, a terrible miscalculation and comes with severe repercussions. It is bad enough visionless presidents cannot see this, unless something happens.

The AU has no right in our reparations claim whatsoever, especially when they never stopped to consider that only a cross section of populations are slave minded, and not all as the liars in the bajan parliament suggested, and painted everyone on the island as such. While on ITV London when showing off and working hard to draw the attention of fellow slavers. We are definitely not part of the multitudes whose minds are owned by or enamored with corrupt politicians. We have learned to dislike them and all they symbolize because of their loathsome actions.

Therefore, I can ask, when did any of those grand plans begin to make sense, did no one stop to think there would be some of us with blessings that transcends parliamentary criminality. While knowing many of us are the leading ancestral bloodlines, we see that as the main reason for the denial of our presence, a tactical error.

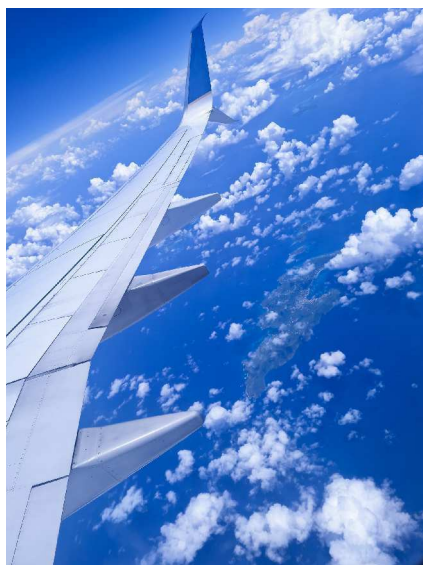

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

Politicians are not going to be allowed to bypass that detail, no matter how much they connive and conspire, it makes no difference. None of the aiding and abetting means us well, and likened to the doings of lurking enemies, and that is why we will never accept the reparations racket between Afrika and the Caricom coons.

The Caribbean colonial middleman/woman does not count, and we do not care what slimy arrangements they make with each other. We do not recognize any of it or them for that matter, because it is not on our behalf: essentially since they have made it abundantly clear that permanent slavery, specifically targeting Afrikans, is the main and only agenda. The multiple millennia old fear factor has expired. Amen Ra

Nigerian Priest Kills Himself Before Being Deported

<https://youtu.be/bWNuxnMkWS>

Source: Zack Mwekassa (english channel)

This video along with the lead sad story, highlights a inordinately distinct, dislike among Afrikans for each other. Did no one notice when this new wave started? We find it strange, you did not divide your borders in 1884-1885 at the Berlin conference, 142 years ago, and were not present, or even invited, still very much excluded. Others who cannot show any direct ancient lineage from half a million years ago, with no blood ties to the continent did.

Yet those barriers are left to further partition off and destroy people/cousins with full blown hatred escalating, and the leaders remain blind to what is really wrong, are therefore incapable of fixing it; no one wants their future in the hands of a group that is unable to clean up centuries of deterioration. Although having 530 years overall in recent eras, the last 75 years as politicians revolving in and out of parliaments to do so, wasted most of that time, and can show only insufficient improvements given the landmass.

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

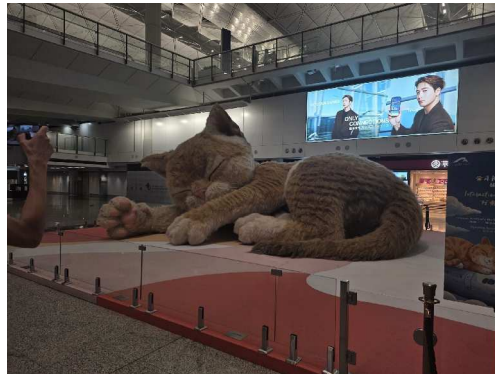

Undeniably there are populations and different countries across the continent neglected. Massive areas face decaying dilapidation or they would not exist for the west to promote them in picture as so poorly managed, that is all we saw until researching, and realizing it was by design to deter our interest. Only showing areas of desolation that should not exist anyway, but not the others that managed to develop.

The same continuous blunders in the Caribbean do not inspire trust, so why would my reparations be placed in your hands, or that of the Caricom failures, when you refuse to appreciate those who are not slave minded. Exactly what would it be doing there, or how would it ever benefit me and mine, with the dismal track records of low performance too many politicians carry as a badge of honor. This can only end the same way it always does, benefiting others but never Afrikan ascendants.

I WAS IN A CAR ACCIDENT

<https://youtu.be/-9lvOZR6SuA>

Source: Zack Mwekassa (english channel)

Now we are hearing about heightened grievances where Afrikans from the same continent with man made borders, are calling each other foreigners even during times of trauma and injury, asking for passports and where they came from. One continent, one people, now so divided and barely functioning within the parameters of humanity.

"Africa Owes Reparations to Black Americans"

And to Black Caribbean people as well. We noticed no one is addressing that particular issue, but forcing our hand to put previously unknown information out there to break up, tear down and smash this awful, life destroying facade to pieces that leaders seem to hold so dear to their hearts. We are fine with that, since it is what they want. We do not want Barbados or any other Caricom slavers involved in any such discussions on our behalf related to our Afrikan ancestral rights. I do not know whose incoming ascendants they plan to continually enslave, but some are making sure this ends here for them.

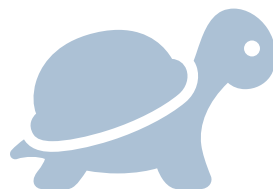

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

- "Africa is the richest continent."

I feel very strongly about this, after watching the huge difference where the Caribbean, now we know, has massive resources, but never available to inhabitants, this includes Haiti. Therefore most had to seek a better standard of living offshore or face extreme hardships that the islands are quite famous for dishing out.

From 1904-1916, many had to leave to find work when the Panama Canal was being built. When they returned and bought plantations and other holdings, one government robbed them and their descendants blind, stole the properties. Then in 1948 boatloads of the Windrush generation left for the UK, everyone knows how that ended in disaster for descendants. Since then, many more migrated to countries where meritocracy is better understood, without the lingering odor of local political yardfowlism, nepotism and every other negative that flourishes in the pigsty mis-managed by politicians.

Which got increasingly worse over time, as population size grew, coupled with the lack of sufficient jobs or any other opportunities. If perchance the massive reserves recently announced becomes available, after drilling seabeds, politicians and their gangs of minorities would tie it anyway, that is what they do to the treasury, vat and pension fund, so imagine billions of dollars in oil revenue. Just like Guyana where the people have complained from the very beginning, nothing goes to the majority population, not even trickle down, it all stays at the top of the pile while poverty reigns at the bottom.

In saying that, Afrikans cannot say they have limited holdings of anything, an expansive variation. Here is where the people are responsible for making it very clear to the presidents that minerals, lands etc are ancestral, belonging to the people and created so Black Afrikans could enjoy intergenerationally. I know it is primarily the kingdoms in charge of the massive land and resources, and they too have become fed up with the way politicians handle things, are taking a stronger stance and a much larger role moving forward. Therefore, Afrikans should not have to leave the continent and go looking for work anywhere.

We can ask them exactly what they are really doing in America or anywhere else, including and especially in Slaverbados, knowing everyone depends on what they can take from the continent to survive and build the west, now a small island is marching the people out, the best resources the continent has to progress and develop reduced to low paying employment, and exceedingly bad treatment in the world's first slave society.

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

They should be building their Afrikan countries instead of someone else's who are not entirely appreciative. While only on the lookout for cheap labor, without having to pay much, most want to pay nothing at all but count money in the millions. Yet there they are making nuisances of themselves and mouthing off at Black Americans when their duty is to remain in Afrika where they are needed the most, defend it, and bring the presidents who take great pleasure in pauperizing, selling Afrikans and entire countries for their own selfish delusional image, into reality, by any means necessary.

Excerpts:

"The people who arrived on slave ships were freed by the emancipation proclamation, no one else. Therefore, it benefits the dominant society and immigrants of African ancestry to spread propaganda and miseducate. Both groups are guilty of being involved in crimes against humanity."

"The United States of America hosts immigrants from every country and many territories. Black Americans are not obligated to learn about other cultures. Instead, the immigrant is responsible for learning about the United States of America and its inhabitants."

"African tribes were forcibly stripped of traditional languages, names, religions, and tribal affiliations. Over centuries a collective of African tribes (70+%) amalgamated with Europeans (20+%) and Natives indigenous to North America (1–5%).

Maponga ERUPTS at African Presidents "You are Swimming in the Poverty of Democracy

<https://youtu.be/NhjiCHIT5Es>

Source: African Legends Speak

We are not prepared to allow Afrikan presidents who may or may not be involved to aid Mia Mottley in enslaving an entire continent, so that pigs can wallow in filth and throw monthly parties in celebration. They must come to terms with this New Talk.

Changing The Historical Slavery Narrative

"Avoid People from Countries That Say:

- "Black Americans are wrong; America is not a racist country."
- "Black Americans need to advocate for immigrants of African ancestry experiencing racism."
- "Black Americans don't respect African culture."
- "Black Americans should call themselves African."
- "Beyonce is appropriating African culture."
- "Beyonce is not African."
- Kendrick Lamar is exploiting and showing the worst of our country."
- "Africa is the richest continent."
- "Africa has the most billionaires."
- "Who told Beyoncé that we are hungry?" asked digital entrepreneur Papi Jay.
- "Africa is a poor third-world country."
- "It's the government."

What we do know is reparations hunters have no leverage whatsoever on the UK or Europe, never did, and openly lying to individual populations, the ones fool enough to believe the hollow rhetoric. However, they still have 11 months left from September to provide it, hope they find it, along with more big talk.

Kush Quarterly Magazine.

HOUSE OF DAVID AND SOLOMON
BLACK AFRIKAN QUEENDOM OF KUSH

© Copyright

The Mdw Ntr - Divine Words Of The Creator By An Elder

As stated from Khemmennu:

I am he who made the bull for the cow...

I am he who made the sky and the two horizons, I placed there the souls of the Ntchru.

I am he who opens his eyes, thus the light comes forth.

I am he who closes his eyes, thus comes forth obscurity.

On the order of whom Hapy's flood flows..., whose name is not known to the Ntchru

I am he who made the hours, thus the days were born.

I am he who opened the New Year's Festival, who created the river.

I am he who made the Living Fire (Sekhm)

I am Khepera in the morning, Ra at his noontide, Atum in the evening.

Excerpt taken from Spiritual Warriors are Healers by: Mfundishi Jhutymys Ka N Heru Hassan K Salim