Why Would Globally Labeled 'Thieves' On Two Continents Ignore Our Concerns

Reputations V. Reparations

By Empress Wuraola Oya

The trepidation began when Barbados' colonial title winners started the whirlwind spin between the Caribbean and Afrika, then escalated from there. The signals sent were bad from day one. Since you hated Afrika for the last four generations, willing to murder and imprison any Black descent who dared show such interest in the continent, ancestry, or in Blackness for that matter. Then 100 years later suddenly bending yourself in halves, and quarters like a pretzel, proclaiming you are the light of the Afrikan world and using every lie and trick imaginable to project this false image. Those were huge red flags.

The thievery on this side is no secret, so imagine the consternation tied to no consultations with us, but social media is lit up with the titleholder claiming they are now in charge of reparations. The talking heads who are not bashful to steal everything in sight, leave Afrikan descents as paupers generationally, and lose no night's sleep whatsoever. Considering themselves in the big leagues now, celebrity "thieves," even more untouchable, and we should be impressed. How do they begin to rationalize this self-elevation?

We all know that "thieves" are not easily cured of the debilitating affliction to relieve others of property and everything else, overnight, it takes years, and in most cases never happens. When going from great grandfather, to grandfather, to father and so on. Bear in mind, we are cursed with revolving cabinets jam packed with such diseased minds. These are hardcore and well within the kleptomania range. Particularly when in charge of legislatures, police forces, judiciaries, on a well known corrupt island, but have avoided arrests for multi-decades, where freedom after ongoing thefts is assured.

Another country had to use Barbados' laws to arrest and convict a minister in a US money laundering case, for the first time in over half a century. Since they never use the island's laws against each other, refused and find every excuse on earth to never will. Nothing is worse than refusing to abide by laws they themselves legislated, but meant only for a large cross section of the majority population and their children only, not for parliament servants or fellow lawbreakers.

They have never ratified Transparency, Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) or Integrity legislations, absolutely made sure it will not happen, were literally forced and threatened with debanking to ratify anti-corruption legislation before they complied. This is all they are good at and for:

A gang of "thieves" who will not ever uphold any laws that benefit the population, but hastily manipulate the ones that can potentially interfere with their criminal endeavors. When things are not going in their favor. Who then fully expects us to sit, take it and shut up. I have no clue which episode of the Twilight Zone they remain stuck in, or if those are the instructions from their masters, but it has become crystal clear, they do not reside in the same dimension as we do, and need to find out why they are now operating outside the realms of reality. Obviously cornered themselves in an alternate space somewhere between the 1950's and 60's when information was so limited, populations were shellshocked and going through the motions.

We now have to wonder how they got back there, it is just about the right place where we would expect the continent is still trying to escape. Maybe they have been interacting way too much.

While knowing that there are no journalists on the island willing to give up their lives, employment and freedom to expose them fully for what they do, since many paid to learn. These are the qualities of titleholders who decided it is time they steal our restitution too; what else would known organized pilferers be doing with that much money in their hands when it is not theirs, since they already stole everything else, makes no sense. When the time would be better spent doing their jobs as paid.

Besides, imagine them getting away with large amounts, and deciding it is theirs, like they do everything else, and refuse to give back anything, same with estates, land, taxpayer's money, vat, pensions etc. While still camouflaged under a colonial theme, it would be hell getting them into a courtroom without jungle justice. On that note, we can ask, was the 27, or 29 million pounds repaid, or allowed to keep it and have to sing all over UK and the Caribbean for the privilege, grand theft?

Why Would Globally Labeled 'Thieves' On Two Continents Ignore Our Concerns - Reputations V. Reparations

Afra Raymond is a leading Trinidad Journalist who commenced an in depth investigation into the Clico financial situation and on regional governments, the results were indeed staggering, astounding and frightening:

2/3rd Government Money Stolen in Caribbean

Remember, this is taxpayer's money, vat and pension fund, none of which is safe from those many hands that make light work of removing everything to their personal portfolios; and leave the island financially weakened looking for another creditor and more loans. Recently we read they are now borrowing to pay loans, meaning taking a loan on one credit card to pay off another, only disaster.

This happened only because of the decades of thefts and write offs of money in the billions that belong to none of the title wearers. The reason why the Auditor General in his over twenty years of patience begging for financial reports, statements, proof of expenditure etc, lamented, so all they did was wait him out until he retired, after ridiculing him for all that time. These are the servants, sweating profusely and salivating to get grimy hands on our recompense.

Fast forward to post 2018 when they finally met and officially publicly connected with their soul mates in the AU. After making a hot run to Morocco first, another strange, highly suspicious move given the disturbing history of both sides. Although there was cause for grave concern due to Afrikan presidents and their reputations, which was not the best. The fact they completely ignored us and never reached out concerning our ancestral rights, just as they did to Afrikan Americans. We had no idea the depths these titles, when in closer proximity to each other, would go to conspire against us; these are public servants. With timestamps who gave themselves all this advantage to decide the course of our lives and that of our future generations without our knowledge, permission, input, nothing.

Why Would Globally Labeled 'Thieves' On Two Continents Ignore Our Concerns - Reputations V. Reparations

Effectively removing the autonomy and freedoms of those who do not and would not know how to stand up and clap back, all against our will. I found it disrespectful and disgusting coming from cabinet servants, and said so, well they all acted like they did not hear. Then we noticed the bajan title leaning heavily toward refusing to relinquish the stranglehold on the parliament by any means necessary, vote rigging was not excluded. While spouting reparations rhetoric like permission and ownership were transferred. They seem to have really big plans of their own, but will not get an opportunity to deliver the final insult, I promise them.

The fact that the AU dismissed us like we do not exist, while on their own crusade to insert themselves in our indemnity without any conscience, tells us everything we need to know to make sure they focus only on Afrikas', coming from the west for Afrikans on the continent, not on ours: from where we are sitting there is something fundamentally wrong with the sideshow they keep putting on with Caricom.

Since they view Black Americans as "inconsequential," but would not hesitate to take over what is rightfully ours, they should tell us exactly how they really feel about us also. Although having access to information on them for years, they have shown us exactly who they really are, without much prompting and no interactions, we can believe them. Therefore, we expect to hear they and their fellow titleholders drop these ridiculous scams they are running on us and get the hell away from anything to do with our western journey. They are making themselves part of that particular problem, as usual, and not the solution. Since this is starting to look a lot like another expert bajan orchestration with presidents being dogwalked.

Why Would Globally Labeled 'Thieves' On Two Continents Ignore Our Concerns - Reputations V. Reparations

The AU, I believe, has much bigger concerns right now, just in case they have not yet figured it out. They do have leverage, but are reluctant to change usage from an instrument of selling out Afrikans to a weapon of success, for several different reasons. Primarily because they never thought it necessary, and would one day need to, shortsighted. The Caribbean titles have none at all, except for what they learned as employees of corporations, and those come tied up with Non-Disclosure Agreements (NDAs), that is why they are riding the AU's coattails. So the challenge remains getting around all of that, just to tie reparations.

They both need to come to terms with the fact, there will be no asserting control over us and our future with the aid of title models who are desperate to take over from their masters, force their domination over us against our wishes, and are now dedicated to filling our lives with their annoying, menacing presence. They can keep that on reserve for the simple minded, child-like followers, admirers and those who do not value their lives, do not know their Story, have no self-confidence, etc, they do have more than enough of them in waiting to choose.

This is also depending on how many slave masters in and around the continent are paying for whatever purpose, there are any number of them hovering, lurking around, as the invader, occupier bloodline. We do not need any titles with dictatorial tendencies who only see us as dollar signs to trade, it is disparaging and backward. We long knew that inhabitants of Afrika never benefit from their resources, land, nothing. Afrikan women and children are particularly vulnerable and at high risk to those willing to sell them to predators in slave markets, that still exists.

Therefore, we are left to imagine how they would treat us, based entirely on what they do to Afrika's populations, what Afrikan Americans were subjected to at various times, spoke out, and what we experience with the criminals in local parliaments: but somehow they all believe they are some gift to the people and the world, deranged. Completely forgetting they were elected by ballot. While dependent on the same people to return them to parliaments so they can swell up with false pride and arrogance.

Why Would Globally Labeled 'Thieves' On Two Continents Ignore Our Concerns - Reputations V. Reparations

Then to add insult to injury some joker decided it was a brilliant idea to push the old doddering St. Vincent Goon on to a reparations committee. A beast who has thousands of documented complaints against him for violent crimes and abuse of Afrikan descended women and children. Including other crimes along the lines of drug trafficking, murder, etc, and the titled nastiness decked out in colonial streamers, saw nothing wrong with that, because they too partake, and cared not who this offends.

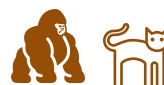

Apparently we are supposed to be accepting of criminals with colonial banners for no other reason than they need us to, so they appear in control of the situation to their masters, or whatever other upuzi in their heads. They have truly become just as outdated as the archaic titles they continue to use as a battering ram.

How about the AU realizing we are still entitled to our ancestral holdings and work on that, individually, I do not like spokespersons, do not trust them, and can speak very well for myself, thank you. The reality is going nowhere, it is not a fantasy but a fact. We can do all of that without the bajan and other Caricom strings who believe they are our navel, and now have their plates plein. Due to juggling the directives of UK and Europe, while dancing around the US, who is on a roll. I certainly see none of them on my genetic test results, it only mentions dominant tribes and areas, and says nothing about politicians in the Caribbean.

So it is a mystery why they believe they have to be involved in everything like they gave birth to us, when some of them never even gave birth, and too late to now. Therefore, I would like to know who are their compliant children; and always acted like they are our jailers. Someone needs to dispel them of that notion. I don't even know those people, never liked them and always thought they were hiding something. I definitely was not born with or related to any of them. They belong to the empire: and just happen to be employees, who could be anyone, but believe they are special.

Their reputations, and violent history are those of the lowest law breakers, the stuff of nightmares, that precedes them as generational, and not part of their political job description. Which is made more destructive since many are legally trained at varying degrees. At least most street criminals have various reasons, these have none and enjoy the psychotic thrills, nothing stops them from doing whatever they like, and of course we have a right to defend ourselves from parliamentary violence. No one would want to be seen with them after hearing full details which is bound to come out in the wash, should this keep up.

Why Would Globally Labeled 'Thieves' On Two Continents Ignore Our Concerns - Reputations V. Reparations

It is quite unfortunate that Afrikan presidents did not properly educationally arm Afrikans before their foray into America. The dynamics are distinctly different, I know personally. To make assumptions about Black Americans and Afrikan Caribbeans based entirely on lack of knowledge has the potential for more major embarrassment.

We noticed the bajan title during its racing around and show off phase was making it seem that we could not even pronounce words, let alone write them, and said it publicly; but knowing the tricks it loves to perform, I am sure it was trying to impress some master. However, they were actually referring to many of their hangerson, yardfowls etc but painting everyone with the same brush for maximum effect, until put in its place.

Education is key to maneuvering any social environment. Apparently, Afrikans did not know how Black Americans' reputation as trailblazers had set the pace and led every important discipline to high achievement in building the west, or that many of their inventions, creations, etc were stolen when helpless to prevent such trespasses.

The difference for us on the islands, every time we created, invented there was always a minority thief-in-waiting led by decorated titles also waiting for their "cut", to grab what is not theirs, and disenfranchise any person of Afrikan descent, even school children. Many creatives could not rise for many decades, had to leave the island to realize their full potential, because of the beast behaviors of common class thieves, and their gangster protections in parliament. Who in rotation spent the last hundred years reducing the ancestral motivations of Afrikan descents for their own greed, and malicious financial benefits.

This still happens but not as widespread because they were exposed within the last decade, and have become more cautious. Plus, when new arrivals like my grandchildren entered the picture, it became a whole new narrative, no more, we got more slave minds to push around. Therefore, cannot even pull that one on my 10 year-old grand.

Whereas before, they had the whole playing field, because people felt unprotected and had no clue what to do to end the nightmare. So for the AU to believe we are all pushovers based on another bajan lie, that was our parents, grandparents, and the previous 20 generation's terrifying experience who were invariably afraid, and had genuine cause.

The same method tried on us recently, when they created fake laws to imprison and fine us heavily, ruling by fear to ensnare us permanently, to cover their tracks which blew back and left them shaken. But now have to come to terms with the shocker, that some of us have decades worth of exposures leading directly back to them, with so much more that can be put out there; and just like them and their brazenness, we are not shy. Our fore parents did not stand a chance. However, the demonic crime of instilling terror to mismanage countries is losing its strength and shine.

Inventions and Education:

100+ HBCUs (Historically Black Colleges) were founded in the United States of America. Between the 1800s and the mid-1900s, innovative Black Americans registered an estimated 50,000 patents. Groundbreaking inventions (agriculture, railroads, science, mathematics, etc.) and NASA's race to space moved the United States of America forward.
