SUN CHILDREN WILL RISE AGAIN

...will rise, will rise, will-will rise again Giving birth to Konsciousness so that light could be born Creating space, bringing Kheper into being Sun beings that recognize their divinity, are the essence of Enlightenment
I am the Blackness that allows light to be seen
I am the father of Ra
I am that which was, before there was existence
I am pure Konsciousness manifesting itself through spirit and soul
Yet, I am you and the Sun simultaneously
I am the light
My mind gave birth to planets, solar systems and Galaxies
I willed myself into this existence through the creation of Ma'at

Delineation From Caricom's Reparations Cult
By Empress Wuraola Oya

It is well recognized, widely established and attested within the last 74 years when political groups made a dramatic entrance into parliaments, the recently named, but now reported as disbanding to go their separate ways, reparations cult cannot be trusted for any reason. They were observed from way back then. When elected, and after each cycle of the vote begging process, refuse to accept after all this time, they are servants of the people. There is nothing in the job description, the suspended constitution, handed down by the British establishment that says or signifies in writing local parliament dwellers are masters or dictators.

Nor can it be found in any mandates given to them by the people over decades, as the fantasies in their heads continue to suggest. All the while wearing the blemished coats of underlings. To make matters worse, most staged spectacles have been mediocre at best, and we are witnessing the worst to date. While they continue feigning that nothing can happen without their divisive presence. Why do people have to continually point out all of this, is the question. The die is cast and they are doomed to fail, as severely hampered.

Populations are complaining, this cult listens to no one and projects they are the fountain of knowledge on every subject, despite everything going wrong on their watch, and are now at abortive proportions, as the whole charade clings to disarray and about to take an unforeseen nose dive into oblivion.

It has now dawned on the people that reparation hunters across continents believe we can be used as leverage and pawns in the game playing with their UK and European masters, that is how humans are turned into fodder, through dangerous, predatory political distractions. Black Americans have come out and made it very clear, this will not happen under any circumstances, so the devisers can put that rotten idea to rest permanently. As of writing, at least one Caricom state has swiveled toward going it alone since legal shifts have taken place, upending elaborate nefarious, disrespectful planning that have no place in the dialogue anyway.

Delineation From Caricom's Reparations Cult

There will be no blending of 530-year-old lived experiences in any engagement with the worst possible track records known as misleaders. I do not believe it could be made any clearer, and very insulting that Caricom members would seek to vocalize that horror show in the making, no matter how well packaged or high hopes exuded. We will never bow to this new age tyranny desperately seeking to come to light. Although warned about outcomes within the last five years, they all stubbornly forged ahead, and still over reaching to drag everyone into the crafted mayhem:

CARICOM Leader UPSET that Caribbean PEOPLE aren't Included in Black American Reparation

To compound the folly, they do not have all the information to make anything happen, and no one has the time for trial and error when maneuvering amongst the most fatalistically disorganized, introduced into the whole process. Why would Caricom governments want to insert themselves in Black American's pending repair is beyond me and highly suspicious. We watched them chasing around searching everywhere for quite some time trying to find a way into disallowed spaces, and must be exhausted just from all those years of effort expended.

Those of Caribbean heritage know who they are, and where their foreparents resided in the last 100 years, have all the necessary tools to track backward with genetic testing as an added feature, and even further still if ancestrally reconnected. Based on that alone, and other more easily acquirable means, they too can seek alternatives. If they have any grievances due to circumstances in the west, during the 1500s-1900s, there are ways to seek recompense. More importantly, the fact that legal conditions have changed drastically within the last two months, a supernova is approaching. Again, there are options to deal with these matters, and when seeking outcomes individually, a winner. Instead of a muddled combined mess, filled with quagmires of complexities led by moving blunders and ponderous political shipwrecks.

The case becomes much stronger without the politician baggage, and fewer players with differing opinions barking at each other to contend with, needlessly prolonging adjudication. Due to the tangled web, the more money they will receive to thwart and stall, thereby hindering advancements. When refusing to listen to very sound advice previously, political heads now find themselves twisting in the wind, fresh out of ideas, and seeking to impose a narrative that has no energy. After having dismissed and not followed the stipulated guidelines of the Brattle Report initially, are now faced with new challenging legal hoops, and forced to immediately change perspectives.

Things turned very difficult indeed when everyone knows what they are capable of, and do not have to comply with any harebrained small island schemes. Something had to give to make them backoff. They can now put away the bully whips. I suggest they leave things and move on, go it alone as now ruminating, seeing as they have all the answers, and should not need anyone to lean on as a crutch. The heated frenzy to assert overall control promptly came with new downsides in the multiples.

Apparently, within the last few days, that is exactly what Barbados decided. Suddenly mouthing they are drawing up restitution plans specifically for the island only, and suggested other islands do the same themselves. Instead of galloping around here and there trying to annoyingly barge in and take over everyone else's redresses, as if they are experts, with signed authority. Although noted to have a long grotesque history of hogging everything that concerns money: particularly when it does not belong to them.

Thankfully, the grasping covetousness at last imploded, and hopefully in the future will remain self-regulated, and contained. While the tiny island is so horribly mismanaged it has devolved into further disheveled turmoil. Talking heads have reached the stage of having to shamelessly walk back years of degraded chatter due to the disastrous blow back which inevitably ensued; and replaced with more unhelpful blather. Regardless of what is now being said, they are still the wrong people purporting to lead any such indemnification. However, once the threat level has evaporated significantly, and can no longer spread its tentacles to areas way out of reach. It is now the people on the land who will have to come to grips with what is presented, and either accept or reject the mediocrity, a personal decision, where no one can interfere.

The self-anointed are the ones directly responsible for double-crossing Black Afrikan descended people on a daily basis, and should not be anywhere near the ancestral discourse as colonial titles owned and paid by everyone. This was emphasized for nearly a decade. With their every action coordinated by the system, and to whom no one owes any reparative repair. Something they fail to see while viewing everything through prisms of self-importance. Therefore, no matter how much pivoting to new ploys initiated by both continents, it will never happen, not even if they waste another eight years, and all end up entering their 70th year of life.

An inevitability none want to consider or accept. Look at how much time was already squandered, and only now find themselves floating back to earth, after the protracted exercise in futility, because no one is engaging with self-destructive political apathy on international display any longer. We can only imagine how nauseous and tired most have become of the go nowhere parade, after speaking to some. Especially since talkers ran out of both gas and road a long time ago, but are still trying to have a say in the Garifuna's claim which has absolutely nothing to do with the island either, but they will have to tell them that themselves.

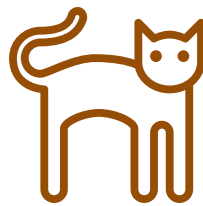

Delineation From Caricom's Reparations Cult

Black Americans have said repeatedly, for an extended time, they are delineating from all other reparations pandemonium, and actually put it in motion, as is their right. Yet there are those who spurn other people's personal decisions, and choices to not participate in any pappyshow and self-promoting circuses directed and hosted by political parties, while they are still employed by the Empire. There is absolutely no reason why people who know there are much better ways available, outside of politics and the associated gamesmanship, should ever lower their dignity to play political mind games with agents of bad character.

Well trained intellectual minds who actually have the skill sets to forge a realistic way forward instead of connecting to outdated brain dead chicanary put together by small island politicians with multiple scandals of child/human trafficking off the Afrikan continent into the Caribbean region in the last five years. Including other instances of on-island enslavement directed at others, and trailing them incessantly, but nevertheless desire to be seen and heard on every topic. Only those who aspire to perpetually remain at the very bottom of the global food chain would want to, or even consider being led around by the same tunnel vision failures called lawyers/politicians. Who all carry a suffocating, anarchic stench and potential descent into one-way ambushes. However, that dysfunctional systemic miscarriage definitely does not appeal to progressive, forward thinking mentalities, especially Black Americans.

The thought is anathema and releases a pungent odor. Most people are only too well aware of the narrow demarcations set in place for political employees of corporations, managers of small states. Where they are allowed to take bribes and aid in obstruction, deconstruction, realize better outcomes for themselves only, and be allowed to switch slave masters at will, a package deal well incorporated into their contracts. In that current prostate condition. They now find themselves drowning in the inability to convince a multitude in the tens of millions of Afrikan descents who carry extremely intelligent levels of logic. Well coordinated and domiciled in the US, that they are some savior for everyone in the diaspora region. After being the exact opposite on Caribbean islands for three lifetimes, the entire racket in a nutshell.

We hope the Caricom players saw the writing on the wall and understand it is time to cut their losses, there is nothing to gain here but grief. Stick to what they excel at instead, within a little sphere, and work with what they got, followers who have no clue and are thus very comfortable. Which in the grand scheme of things is not really much, but a lot safer, easier to handle, manipulate, and remove themselves from this accelerating door of no return forthwith: that can come crashing down with crushing, catastrophic effects. Amen Ra

Some folks on the slow-minded side were paid to demonize the individuals who hold steadfast, and unleashed minions to call Black American FBAs 'nobodies,' simply because they do not want to join in what African and Caribbean politicians are busily, and secretly plotting. The desperation is evident and definitely showing, but they should realize they have now found themselves rejected in totality. Whereas, had there been a strong alliance built for purpose and ultimate success with Afrika from the beginning, directly with Caribbean and other descents in the Americas, it would need no help, or anyone else to jump onboard to strengthen arguments, but would steam ahead on its own power. Had politicians not jumped to the front to poison everything with their usual blight.

Which is one of the missing mechanisms they are excluded from possessing. Unfortunately they resorted to bullying tactics, when seeing the size of the brick wall that pulverized their dreams. A nightmare in the making finally demolished for everyone else. While it is very conspicuous all they are interested in is using the momentum to shine spotlights on themselves as attention junkies and news headliners. There is much more serious work to get done and being put in place as I type. While no one else is regressing at top speed except for political planners. Playing chicken, and running around on all sides praying for a chance to conquer had its moments, but now it is over, and all out of sync with what is finally reachable.

Delineation From Caricom's Reparations Cult

Between the recent Namibia court decision setting an international precedent, a new standard for the descendants of slavery and genocide: to have a demanding voice in everything to do with reparations within judiciaries, and publicly. Along with the UN committee's addition of linking racism to slavery, which opens a legal route for real justice to prevail when they must both be addressed as a unit, and judicially disabled. None of Caricom's jurisdictions made it a news headliner, not even a mention, and only deigned to recognize the latter in their latest spiel at a Caricom conference, mentioned it only in passing. A clumsy attempt at sleight of hand subversion, a very subtle criminal sabotage, as the lowest common denominators.

A blatant refusal to concede we finally achieved the two most collaboratively significant, profound events that have happened since the 1700s to fortify, shape and authenticate the evidence for enlightened Afrikan descendants to march forward as a unified constellation. The most crucial components have been finally attained. Political eyes cannot envision that far into our futures, only saw a money making opportunity, had the nerve to call it "business specific," which is not true, and are blinded to what really took place, a devastating disability, that will certainly return to bite.

A new era was issued in and pertinent to our survival that shows great potential, extremely essential. Nothing else has occurred within the last 300 years to peel away at the layers of invisible chains that bind, but now risk being hijacked, while a search is on for weaknesses within the links to insert decrepit levels of local corruption. Fortunately for everyone, none of the political types in this region can claim credit for either of the two historical events that unfolded, but would much rather either misuse by riding on the wave, or bury them, However, much more grueling to achieve, especially with heightened alerts where everyone is watching.

Hence one of the main and latest reasons they are not allowed to penetrate certain areas. Since still seeking to operate within a cloak of obscurity, trying to pull the shadows inward, becoming so marginal, even using Afrikan dress as a camouflage. That festivity employed and enjoyed over the prior years is over, and has entered the period of make or break. The shroud is gone, no more cover remains in which to operate undetected and advance to the unnatural, more injurious state of betrayal, for which they are quite famous. No one should have had to frequently tell them, on a loop, to stand down forthwith from the now defeated global reparations tour. Amun Ra
