Caricom Prime Ministers And AU Presidents Knew All Along Who Caused The UN "Dysfunction" By Empress Wuraola Oya

The recent revelations from Russia educating us about the inability of the UN to apply the "management function" that would also control their members who are recklessly negligent when refusing to upgrade countries sufficiently to acceptable levels; shows us in recent times there has been no strict supervision, thereby trapping populations in dereliction:

A limited group of Western countries has essentially hijacked the management function' of the UN – Putin

Putin stresses Russia advocates UN reform so Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Middle East play a more significant role.

Neither continental divide can say they did not know, Barbados has been addressing the UN since 1948 when the first Premier Grantley Herbert Adams spoke to the UN Decolonization Committee. Makes us wonder why the current PM did not borrow from Granley Adams' decolonization speech to the UN instead of Selassie's. Which is much more appropriate, and given current circumstances nearly 80 years later still prompts all these "colonizer" complaints from political heads in the Caribbean and Afrika, and would have been ideal.

Afrika started its debut in 1936 with Haile Selassie's famous UN speech to prevent Italy's invasion of Ethiopia. How does that concern Barbados in 2026, especially given the way Afrikan descents are subjected to racism, discrimination and apartheid on the island. Cleaning up that filth first before embarking on the self-righteous crusade would have given much more credibility. Grantley Adams' address came at least 10 years before many seniors who are now in their late 60s and 70s were born, the same year the Windrush ships first started leaving the Caribbean to the UK filled with people from individual islands.

For a grand total of 78 years the island held a UN presence. The first Prime Minister Errol Walton Barrow also spoke at the UN in 1966, and each year there is a representative from every jurisdiction in this region giving speeches, contrary to what Barbados is scheming to project: that it is the first time and first PM to reach those podiums, when in truth, it is the first one to make such a public racket, and must have a spectacle on show. When none of it is new.

While most populations are not aware that island representatives across the West Indies sit on various UN committees, councils, including the youth, and have for many decades. All of which should have been part of the history taught in primary schools since 1959 to present day.

The political gamers all know "a limited group," including themselves, are directly responsible for hold ups to certain progressive development on each island. Which are no more than beg and borrow failed states, where parliament occupiers benefit solely, the only thing they represent and protect, not the people: and personally know the accused. Information which we had no access to unless close to the UN environs, but misleading us to believe the entire 193 member states globally, are somehow directly involved as well. That is the usual, playing all sides to get paid, and we can guarantee they are active employees running around spreading a false narrative, yet sitting and working within the same circle. While everything around the affected countries rapidly declines, disintegrates.

The UN veto power is not the main source of concern here for us since it drills deep into the complexities of geo-politics among the top groupings, and really not our only or biggest fight. It is unfathomable that local politicians are making it their only point of reference, for personal extravagant ambitions. It is always about them, themselves and them, no one else comes first, narcissistic. When the matter has been a talking point at the UN for quite some time and will eventually be resolved by upper hierarchy, the only ones making such decisions.

However, converting small states and Afrika to something much better than dependencies should have been relayed with the utmost urgency foremost, simple and straightforward. Which showcases how the inefficiencies are misused as a handy tool by political elements to continue the same old self absorbed ideologies. While hardships reign among the majority, and dismissing the main topics that are crucial to modification. There is no indication yet political groups are preparing the islands' people for a multi-polar world let alone re-modeling decrepit ramshackle colonial systems, no matter the instability, turbulence ahead that are swiftly advancing:

"Putin said the international system will inevitably move towards a stable balance, but warned the world will remain unstable and volatile as the West adjusts to a multipolar order."

Buckingham Palace may have plans for re-adjustments to commonwealth member states and countries, but once there is no political will to do anything other than keep a colonial shape in place in order to grumble. While attempting to amalgamate multipolarity with unipolarity to ensure all the pay-to-play cunning, and new improved ones remain alive and well through local juggling acts, an ongoing disaster will occur in continuance, the result of inverse movements.

'Certain issues with decision-making process in UN, some things look ARCHAIC' – Putin

'World majority MUST be represented: India, Africa, other countries'

Both continents carry obsolete modes of management operations, despite many being schooled in the west. Hence questions are being asked why certain groups are way ahead, eg. Most Black Americans are much more advanced intellectually than are Caribbean Afrikan descents or continental Afrikans, even though they too were educated and/or worked in the US, UK etc. Only the very few within the latter two groups carry skill sets that run parallel to or outmatch those in the US, and largely reside outside the influence of colonial systems.

One need only look at the conditions of many islands, except for Haiti, which we know is organized destruction. Or most Afrikan countries to see the limitations of administration. The old, "Massa is the reason we can do no better," but only when they are caught in connivance, this does not hold water anymore. The problem we long saw was when local politicians swore they were independent and in charge back in the 1960s.

Though many of us doubted it back then as children, and obviously they were only given the greenlight to say that, but leashed in certain areas, and allowed to run rampant in others, when it bore and caused ill-will toward populations and countries. The reasons for the unacceptable, unsustainable prevailing non-progressive financial, and in most cases social, structural deteriorating conditions.

No apology but King Charles will not shy away from slavery issue during Caribbean tour, Buckingham Palace says | Reuters <https://share.google/JcxN81Wu3GNvy2X8i>

"As such, both reparations and apologies were a matter for the government, a palace spokesperson said."

We have long held the view as employees of populations, yet pretending to be anything but, it is all a matter of misplaced priorities where political workers in parliaments are concerned. Once having wilfully volunteered and contracted, there should not be any reason to neglect responsibilities or shift toward unappealing motives to redirect, and completely deviate from commitments made to electorates, but that is what happens.

Especially when the entire process is seen as a stepping stone to greatness for those whom no one even knew before as globally popular, and not even locally liked or wanted, for very valid reasons. Until the impromptu fake celebrity PR gymnastics started.

Since they were basically unknown outside of the island sphere while sitting in opposition waiting for a break. We are now left to very closely monitor the unfolding situations to see where all of this eventually leads, since they are apparently holding on just to remain relevant, but keep things exactly the same.

What Did Ghana Do With The Billions Of Dollars Earned From Black Americans?

This is the question on the lips of Americans who contributed greatly to the Door of No Return and other government derived schemes, generating never before seen cash flow for the country. These queries are now caused due to the many videos widely circulating about the country's degraded infrastructure. Where facilities of comfort, that are mostly a daily expectation in the west, are very few or nonexistent for inhabitants of the country.

We can say with the utmost certainty and dignity from our ancestors, that while they were still enslaved in the 1850s and transitioning to emancipation, they built the massive underground water pipe networks we still have today, and left to fall into disrepair by so-called schooled present day local politicians in the last 50 years. Our traumatized ancestors were not paid a dime for what we continue to enjoy, mostly consistent life giving water supplies for which we are forever grateful.

The last we read, one politician president of Ghana built a golden statue of his own likeness to himself, and the people righteously smashed it and the arrogance to pieces. They then threw the government out, but not before realizing a massive church was being built, more indoctrination, for religious enslavement, but is very likely to remain unfinished, since no one was pleased at the outrageous cost to taxpayers. Apparently the infrastructures or lack thereof for water and electricity etc was never a matter of greater importance.

The previous government and their acolytes swiftly proceeded to burn the then available pathway to better living down to the ground, and shocking to say the least. Due to catching some virus of complex and feeling superior to American cousins, which dripped down to the population, because suddenly they had access to money and courting American celebrities, so felt emboldened to call Black Americans "slaves." Until the train of money stopped suddenly and returned to its base, then found themselves right back where they started. The very first positives that happened to continental Afrikans in over 8,000 years since our ancient Queendoms and Kingdoms ruled efficiently and brought forth golden ages. Long before invaders and colonizers appeared. However, was flippantly discarded, permanently lost, gone: because Ghana's public servants and kingdom do not know their long-lost history from tens of thousands of years prior, and did not recognize certain things.

We now know Black Americans learned from that terrible mistake and are very unlikely to repeat the Ghana horror show on the continent ever again. Those who watched it all play out and were taking a wait and see approach, digested that as well. While they were only attempting to do the right things as Afrikan descents, what they endured is an additional travesty. After the erudition, a harsh lesson in never becoming sentimental due to the backward sharks out there waiting to devour anyone in their wake, then spit you out. Americans are now moving on from all the confusion caused, and chalking it up to experience. We are pretty sure, Ghana finally realized what they threw away, but no one in the west is making that error twice, ever, it is too late.

What Did Ghana Do With The Billions Of Dollars Earned From Black Americans?

It is time for the continent's people to level up and shine with the creativity we know is available to tap into and bring forth the light needed. They have everything at their disposal. Our enslaved ancestors started with nothing and competently developed their own space so we could survive. Once Afrikan presidents allow them to rebuild the ways and means to invent then engender much better for Afrika. While finally realizing and reviving their true ancestral potential, no matter how much longer it takes:

WHY BLACK AMERICAN CULTURE DID NOT COME FROM AFRICA

Source: Lady Boule

https://youtu.be/wA_qDjrjYmQ

We have evidence indicating that over centuries, just like what happened to us, at least 70% of Afrikan tribes lost their original identities and lots more to various colonizers who swarmed and still do, all over Afrika. Therefore, putting on airs and pretending to be untouched, is such a waste of precious energy, unimpressive:

"African tribes were forcibly stripped of traditional languages, names, religions and tribal affiliations. Over centuries a collective of African tribes (70+%) amalgamated with Europeans (20+%) and Native indigenous to North America (1-5%)."

Just had to mention what some are thinking, and realize the negativity people tend to carry around in their undereducated minds all day long. The audacity to believe Afrikan descendants in the west owes anyone anything, no we do not, including, and especially our personally developed vast knowledge and heightened evolved expertise, to then hand it over to people who do not appreciate any of it or us, borders on delusional.

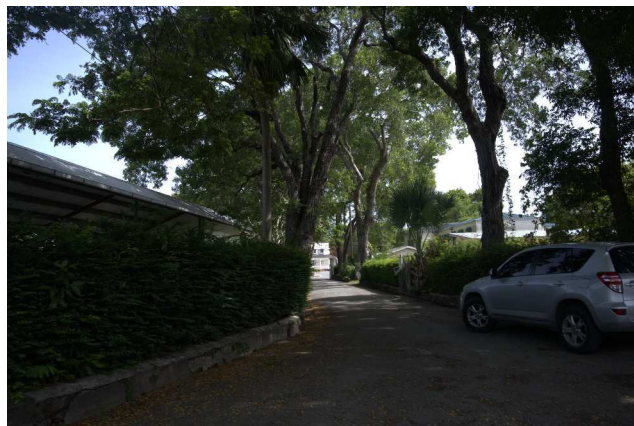

We did not get this from any colonial teachings, none of it exists in that setting, as everyone can plainly see. I independently deliver a much needed public service because of witnessing since a child the lies and dishonesty local politicians direct at populations as a winners only blood sport every generation. While fattening themselves, and believe they are the only ones entitled.

Therefore, we are not about to get soft and silly believing we owe anything to anyone, and will not be used and or exploited by Afrikans with bad intent. Particularly when too many possess the worst attitudes of ingratitude to those who financed them so selflessly before and got nothing but mistreatment in return. Now Afrikan populations are left to accept imperfections, unless something changes drastically. Which we hope happens for them sooner, to break the downward spiral, the encroaching cycle, and dependency on others.

While enhancements increase daily for those countries that already started their transformations to blessed success, but had to fight the demons put into action against them, and are still dealing with that criminal behavior of sabotage. That is what should be occupying every waking moment of Afrikans, and not this horrific obsession with Black Americans, but instead focus on what is directly ahead.

How many times did we try to reach out without the corrupt stench of political intermediaries from this region, and were rebuffed, because like attracts like, especially when they swim in the same swamps. The reason some of us find the whole episode very unpleasant, repugnant.

Especially since too many of the politicians in the Caribbean, for whatever reasons driving them, see the continent only as a place to acquire slaves to enrich themselves, and syndicate partners for the status it brings to such mentally lazy, low-grade feeding types. None of this is attractive to many of us, who find the thoughts and actions abhorrent, and will not be able to hold our noses and accept any of it, that is the huge difference in intellect. A good enough reason to stay well away from those lacking a moral compass.

What Did Ghana Do With The Billions Of Dollars Earned From Black Americans?

Unfortunately it was all enabled by those who still see their Afrikan people as nothing more than beasts of burden and themselves as dictators extraordinaire. The very worst possible misleaders, or it could never happen in the 21st century. There is no justification for still allowing slavery to flourish on lands that give every reason not to, but the wickedness and greed of men and women with the propensity to sell humans; and just like their counterparts, that is only when they are not stealing everything from the treasury, vat and pension fund, to pauperize and socially disable whole populations.

Intentionally leaving incoming generations at a distinct disadvantage, ensuring every crime against humanity remains in full force. All the while feeling extremely proud of the ill-gotten wealth status achievement and having the nerve to climb on the world stage and primp in evil fashion for the world to see.

These are the new political slavemasters wannabe in black face, the unworthy. We have had a very long time to study them and the nothing they bring to the earth. Even though holding tightly to the belief they can use us as an edge and pigeons captured in the latest power struggles, tussles with their masters that now raises anger levels. They can rest assured it is the wrong approach, and do not seek to unleash the beast to find out why.

I suggest they walk back that train wreck in the making and do the right things for the people this time around. With the same energies used to set up this catastrophe, and utilize all the opportunities that recently presented themselves through the majority UN members, and Namibia. We will know if they do nothing, as there is no cover for them anywhere anymore, and nowhere to run and hide. While all excuses to not proceed have become redundant, unacceptable. Amun Ra
